EXCESS PROFITS TAX CUT

Senate Finance Committee Also Abandons "Alternate" Plan of House Bill

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The Senate Finance Committee this afternoon abandoned the alternate profits taxation system of the revenue bill as passed by the House and adopted a scheme whereby the same result may be attained under one system of taxation. The alternate tax scheme had been characterized by lawyers as unconstitutiona.

Yielding to the pleas of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, the committee also reduced the rate of excess profits taxation.

The problem attacked by the committee today was perhaps the most important with which it was confronted in the House revenue bill. The system adopted by the Senate committee, treasury experts said, would yield slightly less revenue than would have been brought in by the alternate system of profits taxation adopted by the House.

The committee changed the 35 per cent. tax levied by the House bill on the amount of net income in excess of the excess profits exemption (8 per cent.) and not in excess of 15 per cent. of the invested capital to a 20 per cent. tax on net income not in excess of 20 per cent. minus the exemption.

WEKKERLE IN VIENNA TO ARRANGE SEPARATION

Geneva, Oct. 22.—Dr. Wekkerle, the Hungarian Premier, has arrived at Vienna to settle the question of Hungary's separation from Austria, according to information from Vienna today. Some Hungarian districts have stopped the exportation of food to Vienna. The German population of Vienna has been without bread for several days and the Mayor of the city has appealed to Emperor Carl to intervene.

Your Christmas Box; How to Send It to the Boy Oversea

Here is the way you must send your Christmas box to that boy of yours in Europe, or elsewhere abroad:

First, see that you receive his self-addressed label from the War Department. Every soldier is to be given one, so your soldier should send his to you for his Christmas box.

Then, on November 1, go to your nearest Red Cross headquarters. Present your label and secure a special carton, which is being provided by the Red Cross for shipments overseas. It will be 3x4x9 inches.

You can't get a box until you present the label. Don't forget that.

Then fill your carton with any combination of articles which will fit in it except those barred by the Post-office Department. When the box is packed, but unwrapped, it must not weigh over two pounds and fifteen ounces. If overweight some article must be removed.

GIVE IT TO RED CROSS.

Do not mail the box yourself. Return it before Nov. 20, and unsealed, to the Red Cross station where you obtained the carton. It will be inspected,

U. S. COMPLAINT AGAINST BIG TOBACCO CONCERNS

Washington, Oct. 22.—Charging the employment of price discrimination in the sale of cigarettes and other tobacco products, tending to create a monopoly in the tobacco industry, and alleging the maintenance of interlocking directorates, the federal trade commission this afternoon filed complaints against five of the largest tobacco concerns of the country and eight of their officers. The concerns and men named are: The Tobacco Products Corporation; Schinasi Brothers, Inc.; Prudential Tobacco Company, Inc.; Falk Tobacco Company, and George L. Storm, Reuben M. Ellis, Albert Falk, Jacob L. Hoffman, James F. Dixon, Gray Miller, L. B. McKitterick and Leon Schinasi.

CHANCELLOR'S SPEECH ANXIOUSLY AWAITED

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, Oct. 22.—The German chancellor's speech in the Reichstag, which is expected to deal with President Wilson's recent reply to German peace overtures, is anxiously awaited, said a dispatch from Berlin. It is expected, the dispatch added, that the speech will deal with a great program of internal and foreign affairs.

MISS SERGEANT WOUNDED IN FRANCE

Miss Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant of Hawthorn road, Brookline, daughter of Charles S. Sergeant, vice-president of the Boston Elevated, was injured during the explosion of a hand grenade in France, which killed Mlle. de Vallette, head of the American section of the press department of the French Foreign Office, according to advices from Paris.

Miss Sergeant, who has been doing magazine and Red Cross work in France for thirteen months, was struck in the face and otherwise injured, according to the brief cables already received. Her father today cabled the Red Cross officials in France and his son-in-law, First Lieutenant Ernest Angell, of Cleveland, O., who is with the United States Expeditionary Forces, for details of the accident.

Mlle. Vallette picked up the hand grenade near the front, in territory recaptured by the French, although warned by an officer to touch nothing. Mlle. Vallette was conducting a party of women from the United States at the time of the accident.

In addition to Killing Mlle Vallette and injuring Miss Sergeant, the grenade blew off the arm of a French officer.

Mr. Sergeant told a Boston AMERICAN reporter that his daughter had been in France on the present trip thirteen months, during which she had written several special articles for the New Republic and had done some Red Cross work. Her last article was on the war work of American women in France. She had visited the front several times, but was never injured before. Miss Sergeant is thirty-five years of age and was graduated from Bryn Mawr.

For the past ten years Miss Sargent has lived in France much of the time. She wrote a book, "French Perspectives," a study of French types. One of her most recent literary tasks was the translation of a French officer's story of the war.

TURKS CUT OFF FROM TEUTONS

London, Oct. 22.—The Serbians and French are rapidly approaching the border of Herzegovina (an Austrian province bordering Montenegro on the north and Serbia on the northeast), said an official dispatch received here today. The Austro-German commander on the Serb front is attempting to concentrate his forces, but great numbers of Austro-Hungarian and German soldiers are deserting, thus hindering the movement.

MAUBEUGE MENACED BY HAIG

Paris, Oct. 22.—Belgian troops have crossed the Shipdonck Canal at Meerendre, five miles west of Ghent. Audenarde (fifteen miles southwest of Ghent) is being rapidly outflanked by the allies. South of Valenciennes, the fourth British army, in which American units are fighting, has crossed the Sambre-Aise Canal and is advancing around the lower end of Mormal Forest toward Maubeuge, the so-called "key to Belgium."

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 22.—The allies have made a new advance of nearly a mile between the Escaut Canal (Scheldt River) and the Lys River on the Flanders front, the British War Office announces. The retreating Germans abandoned all of their defence guns on the Belgian coast.

Peace Terms for France Outlined by Wangenheim to Morgenthau

Peace Terms for France

So confidently did Wangenheim expect an immediate victory that he began to discuss the terms of peace. Germany would demand of France, he said, after defeating her armies, that she completely demobilize and pay an indemnity. "France now," said Wangenheim, "can settle for $5,000,000,000; but if she persists in continuing the war, she will have to pay $20,000,000,000.

He told me that Germany would demand harbors and coaling stations "everywhere." At that time, judging from Wangenheim's statements, Germany was not looking so much for new territory as for great commercial advantages. She was determined to be the great merchant nation, and for this she must have free harbors, the Bagdad railroad and ex-

Prompt Answer to German Note Is Looked For

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 22.—President Wilson has fully decided on his attitude toward the latest German peace note. His course of action was mapped out at conferences last night with Secretary of State Lansing and with other officials today. He is expected to make a definite announcement dealing with the matter late today or tomorrow.

The feeling here in Washington was that there was no occasion for any undue haste in the matter. The military situation so far as the allies were concerned was working out splendidly. The political pressure at home in Germany was continually getting stronger on the Kaiser and his advisors.

Year Ago Tomorrow First Shot Fired by American Gun

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 21.—One year ago tomorrow Sergeant Alex Ray of South Boud, Ind., pulled the lanyard of an American gun, in a battery position on a muddy hill northeast of Exermont, firing the first American shot of the war into the German lines.

At 5 o'clock on the evening of the same day the first detachment of American infantrymen entered trenches along the Rhine-Marne canal. These men were units of the first American division, then commanded by General Sibert.

Since that time the red-headed Indiana sergeant has been home and returned again to his company. And since that time the first division has occupied six other sectors, participating in practically every big engagement in which American soldiers have fought.

"NEUTRAL" INQUIRY IN BOCHE ATROCITIES

Amsterdam, Oct. 22.—A neutral commission has already gone to the front to investigate charges of wanton destruction committed by the German army, said a dispatch from Berlin today.

Bean-Shooters on Hallowe'en, Here's a Word to You!

A campaign for the suppression of bean shooting on Hallowe'en in the plea of a Dorchester woman, in the interests of both public safety and food conservation. Boston's pride, she points out, is now selling at 32 cents a quart and ought to be on the table instead of in the eye. Every bean on the bean, remember, means only 3⅓ on the plate. And at the present market price three and one-eighth quarts of beans cost a bean in Uncle Sam's currency that might be invested in thrift stamps.

So, patriotic little boys and girls, come and sign up for a beanless Hallowe'en!

250-MILE BARRAGE OF MINES

American Navy Lays Thousands of Explosives Between Scotland and Norway

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

A Scottish Port, Oct. 18 (Delayed).—The American navy has today virtually completed the bottling up of German U-boats in the North Sea by the laying of a mine barrage, which extends from the coast of Scotland to Norway.

The field is 250 miles long and consists of thousands of mines loaded with TNT of the latest type. They are so closely knitted to each other that a rowboat could scarcely penetrate the barrage.

The whole mine field is controlled by a very simple device. The work was carried out under the nose of the German high seas fleet and German seaplanes, but the Heinies did not fire a shot to hamper the workers.

ALL AMERICAN MINES.

The feat was accomplished by the American navy with mines transported and assembled by Americans. The British navy aided in the work materially, but the bulk of the laying was done by the Americans, with American warships patrolling.

The only exit from the North Sea now open to the Germans is the Dardanelles lane through the English Channel, which is beset with difficulties of the gravest kind.

The imagination can picture the

WASHINGTON BELIEVES GERMAN NOTE BRINGS PEACE NEARER

The radical element, led by Maximilian Harden and other noted German socialists, were increasing their pressure to compel the government to make an immediate peace, no matter what the cost. Consequently, efforts and diplomatic here were plainly more concerned with the progress of events in Germany than they were in what action the President might take in handing it plain that the new German note was entirely unsatisfactory.

OFFICIAL TEXT ARRIVES.

The official text of the note reached the Swiss legation soon after 10 a. m. today. Acting Charge d'Affaires Frederick Oederlin immediately set a force of translators at work translating it from the Swiss diplomatic code. He notified the state department that the communication was in his hands, and was told to at Secretary Lansing would receive him at any time he so desired.

Interest in the German note was much less than in the previous communication. Officials believed that in this instance the note was more or less of a stop-gap, sent as a feeler to determine whether negotiations could not be instituted which would, in effect, put President Wilson in the position of acting as mediator between Germany and the entente governments. They were fully convinced that it would fail of its purpose.

The apparent awkward acceptance of President Wilson's various conditions, hedged about as it was with restrictions, was a good example of German diplomacy, officials said, and they suspected that the President would demolish the pretensions in a way that would force the German government to come into the open with an admission of military defeat.

A STEP NEARER PEACE.

The German note was characterized by government officials today as unsatisfactory, although it was accepted as a "definitement" acceptance of the President's peace decision. It was certain that it would not lead to any immediate cessation of hostilities. However, no one denied that this note has brought peace much nearer.

Merely contrasting its tones with the bellicose utterances and threats of the German government three months ago shows conclusively the changed German attitude.

A few weeks ago the Kaiser loudly proclaimed to the Reichstag that he works that peace by the sword was certain if they would simply stand by the military party. His words were echoed by all of the military leaders then securely in the saddle. Today they offer a limited surrender.

Within the next few weeks they will surrender absolutely or face invasion with all that military occupancy implies.

"Puerile and Incoherent," London Daily Mail Says of Solf's Latest Effort

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 22.—"Puerile and incoherent" is the description given to the latest German peace note by the Daily Mail.

"The note comes at the same time as the news of the sinking of the steamship Dundalk in the Irish Sea by a German submarine, at the same time comes news of the stealing of food sent by the American commission into Ostend. The allies have no proof yet of any change on the part of Germany."

"The German note means that Germany must gain time or the state and the German military will collapse," said Lord Northcliffe.

"Peace should be signed in Berlin," declared Lord Charles Beresford. "For a country that has been butchered, for other countries that have been devastated and for the millions of women that have been wronged, Germany must 'pay her merited doom.'"

The Chronicle calls the note impudent and declares that it is unacceptable.

"It is vague and intended to prolong useless discussion," says the Telegraph.

"The German note means that the armies shall be enabled to march home with munitions ready to fight," said the Daily Mail. "It is another paltry and contemptible assumption of injured virtue and calamity. It is a device to save ruling criminals. To talk with Germany is useless until that country is disarmed and thoroughly defeated."

The Daily News says that the allies must recede in line with President Wilson's points.

German Government Has Been Changed, Note Says

The text of the German reply to President Wilson's note as received by wireless from Berlin is as follows:

In accepting the proposal of the evacuation of occupied territories the German government started from the assumption that the procedure for this evacuation and the conditions of the armistice should be left to the judgment of the military advisers and that the actual standard of power which both sides in the field have should form the basis of arrangements safeguarding and guaranteeing this standard.

The German government suggests to the President that opportunity be brought about for fixing the details of an armistice.

PROTEST ATROCITY CHARGES.

The German government trusts that the President will approve of no demand which would be irreconcilable with the honor of the German people and with the opening of the way to a peace of justice.

The German government protests against the reproach of illegal and inhumane actions made against the German land and sea forces and thereby against the German people.

For covering a retreat destructive will always be necessary, and it is as far as necessary they are permitted by international law.

The German troops are under the strictest instruction to spare private property and to exercise care for the population to the best of their ability.

The German government proposes, in regard to all these charges, that the facts be cleared up by neutral commissions.

In order to avoid anything that might hamper the work of peace, the government has caused orders to be dispatched to all submarine commanders precluding the torpedoing of passenger ships, without, however, for technical reasons, being able to guarantee that these orders will reach every single submarine at sea before its return.

GOVERNMENT CHANGED.

As a fundamental condition of peace the President prescribes the destruction of every arbitrary power that can separately, secretly and of its own single choice disturb the peace of the world. The German government replies that hitherto the representatives of the people of the German empire have not been endowed with influence on the formation of a government. The constitution did not provide for the concurrence of representatives of the people in decisions as to peace and war.

These conditions have just now undergone a fundamental change. A new government has been formed in accordance with the wishes of the representatives of the people, based upon equal, universal, secret and direct franchise.

The leaders of the great parties of the Reichstag are members of this government. In the future no government can take office or continue in office without possessing the confidence of a majority of the Reichstag.

The responsibility of the chancellor of the empire to the representatives of the people is being legally developed and safeguarded. The first act of the new government has been to lay before the Reichstag a bill to alter the constitution of the empire so that consent of the representatives of the people is required for decisions as to war and peace.

CHANGES "GUARANTEED."

The permanence of the new system of government is, however, guaranteed not only by constitutional safeguards but also by the unshakable determination of the German people. Whose vast majority stands behind these reforms and demands their energetic continuance.

The question of the President as to with whom he and the government associated against Germany are dealing, therefore, is answered in a clear, unequivocal manner by the statement that an offer of peace and an armistice comes from a government which, free of any arbitrary, or irresponsible influence, is supported by the approval of an overwhelming majority of the German people.

BRITISH CLOSE TO TOURNAI; TAKE ORCQ

The text of the official report follows:

"In Flanders the retreating Germans have abandoned all of their coast defence guns on the coast, including long-range cannon that had shelled Dunkirk.

"The French have crossed the Lys River and repulsed violent German counter attacks.

"The British have reached the Escaut Canal, near Elchin, in spite of lively resistance.

"Between the Escaut and the Lys the British advanced 1,500 yards."

South of Thiant, the western part of which is now in possession of the British, the British advanced to the left bank of the Escaillon.

Further progress has been made by the British between Valenciennes and Tournai, despite increased enemy resistance.

The report says:

"As a result of local fighting during the night we advanced our line to the left bank of the Escaillon south of Thiant. We now hold the western part of Thiant.

"Further progress was made by us between Valenciennes and Tournai. The enemy's resistance on this front is increasing.

"In the Tournai sector, as the result of sharp fighting during the night, we drove the enemy out of the village of Orcq and the woods in the neighborhood of Froyennes.

Froyennes is a mile northwest of Tournai. Orcq is less than a mile due west of Tournai.

"We are now less than a mile from the town (Tournai)."

Allied Advance Menace to the German Bases at Valenciennes and Tournai

By FRANK CHARLTON.

International News Service Cable Editor.

German resistance has stiffened at some points on the western battlefront, but the allied advance has continued for twenty-four hours, and the German bases at Valenciennes and Tournai are being steadily "pocketed."

The British have taken La Sentinelle and are now only about half a mile from Valenciennes.

In the district north of Valenciennes and south of Tournai, where the British are approaching Condé sur Escaut and St. Amand (important German lines of communication), the Germans have been putting up a strong defence, but in spite of their stubborn efforts they have been forced back.

Between the Escaut canal and the Lys river (near the Franco-Belgian frontier) the British gained nearly a mile.

FALL OF DEINZE IMMINENT.

This advance was carried out in the district north of the triangle formed by the cities of Lille, Roubaix and Tureoing.

Deinze has been surrounded by French and British troops and its fall is imminent, if it has not already taken place.

The British now hold about seven miles of the Escaut canal (the Scheldt River) between Tournai and Audenarde.

The western part of Thiant (five miles southwest of Valenciennes and three miles southeast of Denain) is now in British hands.

Allied forces east of Cambrai are now only fourteen miles from the German stronghold at Aulnoye, which General March, the American chief of staff, recently described as "one of the most vital German key positions" on the Western front.

HARD FIGHT FOR YANKEES.

The Americans are meeting with desperate resistance northwest of Verdun, but are carrying out a steady operation which is "nibbling away" the German lines.

The Germans regard their defensive lines northwest of Verdun as being more vital than those in Flanders, because they guard the German border at a point where invasion would be a downright calamity. In spite of stormy weather and strong opposition, the Americans are going steadily forward with their infiltrating operations.

The French are daily biting deeper into the German lines between the Serre and Barres river (northeast of Verdun).

On the Balkan front the French and Serbians are now approaching the Austrian frontier. Only the northern tip of Servia remains in Austro-German hands. The German commander in northern Serbia is attempting to concentrate a force to hold the line of heights south of the Danube river, but is hampered by the large number of desertions.

French Armies Resume Their Advance, Reaching Vervins-La-Fere Railroad

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 22.—On the front of the Serre River, the French have resumed their advance, reaching the Vervins-LaFere railroad, northeast of Assis sur Serre and St. Jaques farm, the French War Office announced today.

(Assis sur Serre is two and one-half miles southeast of the German base at Crecy and St. Jaques farm is one and one-quarter miles south of Crecy.)

The Germans attacked violently with sixteen divisions east of Vouziers.

The text of the communique follows:

"There was great artillery activity during the night north of the Oise River.

"The French resumed their progress on the Serre River front, reaching the railway northwest of Assis surs Serre and also St. Jaques farm. (St. Jaques farm is just north of Chalandry.)

"The battle diminished in intensity on the plateau east of Vouziers.

"The enemy's attacks there were yesterday very heavy. Sixteen enemy divisions were identified.

"An attempted attack against Tardonne farm this morning was repulsed.

"Prisoners were taken in a raid near the Bonhomme Pass in the Vosges mountains."

"Gallows for the Guilty," Cry of German Socialist Papers, Scoring Junkers

London, Oct. 22 (By British Wireless Press) — Violent campaigns against those who are called "chief culprits" are being conducted in all of the German provincial Socialist newspapers. The Volkszeitung, organ of the Nuremburg Socialists, says:

"The German people are searching for the guilty. Pan-Germans and Junkers are silent today, but we do not forget that they were the great war inciters in Germany, that they remain the support of social and political reaction, and that they are a danger to future healthy development of the German empire. Pan-German policy has gone bankrupt, but unfortunately it has led the German people to disaster.

"To the gallows with the guilty, whoever they be."

The Arbeiter Zeitung, of Vienna, urges German Socialists to ferret out the "chief culprits" and to punish them without mercy. It says:

"When the German soldiers return home from the trenches after four years of unparalleled suffering there will be reckonings for the people who have led them to catastrophe. The German people will sweep away the Junkers and generals and take its own destiny into its own hands."

The Frankische Tagespost, of Nuremburg, the first paper to openly advocate the abdication of the Kaiser, now declares that the accession of the Crown Prince is entirely out of the question.

LIEUT. SOUSA SUFFERING FROM INFECTION OF EAR

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Lieutenant Philip Sousa, director of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station band battalion, is undergoing treatment here for a slight infection of the ear. He is confined to his apartments at the Blackstone Hotel.

Complete recovery is expected within two weeks. Lieutenant Sousa was treated for the infection at Detroit and Grand Rapids during the recent Liberty Loan campaign.

OUSTED FROM SERVICE FOR FRAUDULENT PRACTICE

Sergeant Philip Sherrin of the Quartermasters' Department, Fort Williams, Portland, Me., has been found guilty of selling blankets and four sacks of flour belonging to the government, to Axel J. M. Johansen of the quartermaster's department, and keeping the proceeds. He was sentenced to Fort Jay for two years and was dishonorably discharged from the army.

RESCUE OF ENSLAVED BRETHREN IS ITALIANS' HEART'S DESIRE

ASK LANDS SEIZED BY AUSTRIA IN 1814

Restoration of Italian Irridenta to Be Demanded at the Close of the War

The flame of Italia Irredenta burns with renewed vigor since the Alpini came to town.

The heroic mountaineer soldiers of Italy, adding their number to the picturesque bands of foreign fighters who have visited us as representatives of our brave allies, visualized to lovers of Italy more than the average spectator may have understood.

They created a vision, not only of deeds of Italian heroism above the Alpine clouds, but also of the ultimate goal of Italia Irredenta and the wiping out of a score held against Austria since the Congress of Vienna in 1814.

Adding fuel to this flame of patriotism also is the occasional report of scattered activity on the Italian battlefront, such as the latest announcement by Rome of a gain by Italian shock troops against the Austro-Hungarian lines on the northern Italian line.

What is "Italia Irredenta" and how does it figure in the world war?

ITALY DEFINES CLAIMS.

In October, 1915, Rome issued the Italian Green Book as Italy's official explanation of her break with Austria-Hungary and the shattering of the Triple Alliance.

Italy's reasons for having declared war upon Austria were summarized thus:

1—The inadequacy of Austria's offer for territorial compensation for having upset the Balkan situation.

2—Austria's tardiness in negotiating for a peaceful settlement.

3—Demand for realization of Italian national ideals.

4—Demand of population of "Italia Irredenta" for incorporation into Italy.

In President Wilson's message of January 8, containing his fourteen peace points, the ninth point was:

"Readjustment of Italy's frontiers along clearly recognized lines of nationality."

Without undertaking at this time to anticipate the ultimate decision of the Allies on questions of international re-districting, it is possible to discuss the aspirations of "Italia Irredenta" as the map shows it.

"Italia Irredenta" includes:

1—Trentino.

2—Kustenland, or Coast-Land,

3—Dalmatia.

ASK LANDS REDEEMED.

The patriotic Italian claim is that these three regions, while under Austrian domination, are populated by Italians and should properly be restored to Italy. These lands, for the major part, were handed to Austria by the Congress of Vienna, held in 1814, to recompense her losses after the downfall of Napoleon.

Trentino, or the Trentino, as it is popularly styled, is the southern part of the Austrian triangle which dips down into northern Italy into the valley of the Po river between Venitia and Lombardy, nearly to Verona.

Its chief city is Trent. The chief manufacturing industry is silk-spinning. But the Trentino, placed mostly upon the slopes of the Southern Tyrol, has been mainly given to growing fruit and making wines.

Nearly all the population of the Trentino is Italian, but the region, being under Austrian rule, has been governed and garrisoned by Teutons. The Trentino is of enormous strategic importance. Possession of this mountain spur gives Austria strategic command of the valley of the Po. The Brenner Pass is a powerfully fortified gateway to the south.

The Trentino claim, by some Italians, would restore to Italy the district as far north as the Pass itself, in order that the gateway itself might also be guaranteed.

ITALIANS STRONG ON COAST.

Kustenland, or Coast-Land, is on the peninsula projecting into the Adriatic Sea just east of the Italian frontier. It is an Austrian province, located in the Isonzo valley and the neighboring Istrian peninsula. The old Latin population left after the fall of the Roman Empire is pushed back to the coast line by invading Slavs. The Italian racial strength in the Coast-Land is but one-third of the whole, compared with a two-thirds Slavic element. The dominating Austro-Germans constitute only one per cent. of the population.

Kustenland is strategically important to Italy because it would enable her to dominate the Adriatic. It would give the Italian port of Fiume bottled up between the Istria, with its way port of Pola, and the Quarnero Islands, Austria proper would be left without direct contact with the sea.

COMMERCIALLY IMPORTANT.

The third factor in Italia Irredenta is Dalmatia, the narrow stretch of coast on the eastern shore of the Adriatic. It is only thirty-five miles wide at the utmost, but is about 210 miles in length. Its area of 4,956 square miles is about that of Connecticut. It includes a head-work of islands that extend down its coast from Pola to Montenegro.

Dalmatia, likewise awarded to Austria in 1814, is 97 per cent. Jugo-Slav and about 3 per cent. Italian, with a bare sprinkling of Teuton officials and soldiery. That is, it was before the war. While Dalmatia is not claimed so strongly by Italy on racial grounds as is the Trentino or the Coast-Land, nevertheless Italy's moral right to it is zealously upheld by many Latins. From an economic standpoint Dalmatia is highly desired by Italy for a base for railroad lines into the Balkans, for Cattaro as a naval base and for the additional control it would give over Adriatic waters.

"LOST LANDS" WHICH ITALY FIGHTS TO REDEEM

When the soldiers of the old Roman Republic, marching forth to conquer the world, reached the eastern shores of the Adriatic, they found there a people not very unlike themselves. The ancient Illyrians were closely connected with the masters of Italy both in race and speech. Under the long centuries of Roman domination the Illyrians became thoroughly Latinized, so much so, indeed, that this province furnished several distinguished wearers of the Imperial Purple to Rome. Illyria was entirely Latin in customs and speech when the break-up of the Roman Empire came, as was Rhaetia (the Imperial province corresponding roughly to the present Austrian Tyrol, including the Trentino district claimed by the Italian Irredentists). In the centuries that followed, the Balkan lands were many times overrun by the barbarians of the north of Europe and of Asia. Goths, Gepidae, Huns, Bulgarians, Avars and Croats came in successive waves, all to pillage and murder, but some to settle permanently in the fair lands of the south. Ancient Illyria (modern Dalmatia and Kustenland) escaped the more terrible of these precursors of the Germans; the land was further removed from the Danube gateway that most of the Balkan countries, and its hills were less inviting than the more fertile plains of the east. But the invader came; generally because he was pressed back from the lowlands by new barbarians, and the steady flow of Slavic element has gradually swamped the original Latin-speaking inhabitants of the country. Along the coast and in the larger industrial centers the Italians have still a goodly representation, but in the farmlands of the back country the Slavic element dominates. The Trentino on the other hand escaped almost entirely. Invading streams poured past to the north and south, along the Danube and into the sunny plains of Italy, but the Rhaetians remained untouched in their mountain fastnesses and today are as essentially Roman as they were in the times of the Caesars.

SON RECEIVES FATHER'S REWARD FOR LOST BAG

Alexander Kerr, president of the Malden Y. M. C. A. and a Malden mayoralty candidate, recently lost a bag containing cash, checks and valuable papers. He offered a reward for its return in an advertisement. His small son, Donald, while walking through Italy into the valley, found the bag, with contents missing, returned it and Mr. Kerr had to pay over the reward to him.

FANS NOW LEARN SOX DONATED TO RED CROSS

Cincinnati, Oct. 22.—Secretary John E. Bruce of the National Baseball Commission, has forwarded a check of $16,034.32 to Secretary of War Baker. The money represents 10 per cent. of the World's Series spoils. This fund, together with $2,-215.27, already donated by the champion Red Sox, goes to the war charities.

TURKS ALMOST COMPLETELY ISOLATED

The French have reached the Danube River, cutting another line of communication between the central empires and Constantinople.

When the Serbians reached Nish they severed the Oriental railway, the only direct railroad line of communication between Germany and Constantinople, but the waterway line of communication, via the Danube and the Black Sea, remained open. Now that line is closed and the only way Germany can communicate with her Oriental ally is through Russia and the Black Sea, a long, tortuous and difficult line.

The French War Office announced that the Danube had been reached in the vicinity of Vidin. Vidin is in Bulgaria, about 47 miles southeast of the Austro-Hungarian frontier. It is on the Rumanian frontier, the Danube separating Bulgaria and Rumania at that point.

The Serbians are approaching Kragujevats, only 72 miles from Belgrade and the seat of the Serbian national arsenal.

It has been just five weeks since the allies launched their offensive on the Balkan battlefront, and it has been followed by overwhelming and decisive victory. After the Bulgarians threw down their arms the Germans and Austro-Hungarians in Serbia and Albania put up a show of resistance, but have been forced back steadily and are now almost to the Danube line throughout the whole of northern Serbia.

The allies are in a position to squeeze Turkey from three points:

Westward from Mesopotamia and Persia;

Eastward from Palestine;

Southward from the Balkans.

The Arab tribes are in revolt and can aid the allies by attacking northward from the Arabian desert.

SALEM GIRLS LEAVE TO DO RED CROSS WORK

Salem, Oct. 22.—Three society girls leave here tomorrow to do Red Cross work in Halifax, N. S. They are Miss Elizabeth Benson, daughter of Frank W. Benson, an artist, Miss Ruth Benson, daughter of former Mayor Henry P. Benson, and Miss Elizabeth F. White, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth White. For the first four months they will pay their own expenses.

Kaiser Is Executed in Effigy by All Dorchester

While some 20,000 residents of Ward 13, Dorchester, hanged, burned, and buried the Kaiser in effigy, all traffic at Dorchester avenue and Mt. Vernon street was held up for twenty minutes, conductors, motormen and passengers joining the "mourners." A hearse carrying the effigy, which was made by Orrin Hodgdon, assisted by William Troy, was attended by six sailor boys as pallbearers, all carrying red lanterns to represent the German princes. Followed by automobiles and a cheering crowd, the "funeral cortege" paraded the streets, ending with a public "execution."

Lieutenant John J. Bowman of the State Guard acted as official "undertaker," and William H. O'Brien of the gas and electric light department, Public Service Commission, as master of ceremonies.

AMERICAN NAVY BOTTLES UP U-BOATS

American mine field through a conception of a gigantic salmon trawl. Seventy thousand men, working day and night accomplished the feat. The steamers assisting in the work were former German coasting vessels—Fall River liners, Southern Navigation liners, etc., which were formerly devoted to the carrying of pleasure parties, dancing and gaiety.

HAZARDOUS UNDERTAKING.

The work was very hazardous on account of the high waves in the North Sea and because at times the ships were sometimes but yards from each other at 500 yards. They ran the risk of colliding in the darkness, which would have caused terrific explosions.

The mines were lowered from these vessels very much in the same manner as depth charges are lowered from American destroyers. The work started in June. The men showed remarkable facility, often laying in six hours the same number of mines it formerly would have taken six weeks to launch.

In one operation alone 7,000 mines were placed. There have been a few premature explosions, but the Americans will keep the supply of mines up to full requirements.

RAIL AND SHIP ISSUES SHOW STRENGTH

Railroads and shipping issues were strong in a generally higher and active market. Southern Pacific made a new high for this movement at 105⅝, up ⅝, then eased to 104⅝, off ⅜. Great Northern pfd. gained 1⅝, at 96⅝; Reading 1⅝, at 81⅝; New York Central 1⅛, at 85; Chesapeake and Ohio 1⅞, at 61¼; Northern Pacific ⅝, at 82, and Union Pacific 1⅛, at 136⅝.

Anaconda opened at 72, fell to 71¾ and sold unchanged at 72⅜. Inspiration lost ⅝, at 55⅝, then sold at 56. Utah Copper sold 90¾.

Baldwin Locomotive was strong selling from 82 up to 84⅝, up 2¾. Studebaker recovered its loss after selling at 64⅝, off ⅝. General Motors was up 1⅞, at 123¾.

Marine preferred was up 2¼, at 124; Atlantic Gulf 3¾, at 111; International Corporation 1⅝, at 57.

Mexican Petroleum sold up to 170¾, after losing 10 points at 162, off 2⅝. Rails weakened, and Steel stocks went still higher in the last hour.

U. S. Steel started at 121⅛, receded to 120⅝, and rose to 121⅜, up ⅝. Bethlehem B gained ⅝, at 75¾; Republic gained 2¾ at 97¾. Republic Steel lost ¾, at 89¾.

SUGAR ENOUGH IF PUBLIC AID NEW PLAN

Weekly or Semi-Monthly Purchases Considered to Solve Problem

Housewives soon will be allowed to buy sugar in weekly or semi-monthly amounts, instead of buying two pounds at a time as now, Edward Wigglesworth, chief of the sugar division of the Food Administration, announced today. At present a purchaser can buy but two pounds at a time. If there are nine members in his family it necessitates nine trips to the grocery store each month, under the new plan the purchaser can buy one-quarter of the monthly allowance each week.

Putting into effect this simplified method of distribution, however, is dependent upon the housewife herself. She must buy from her local grocer. Sufficient sugar is on hand to allow each person in the State two pounds during the month, provided no one "hogs" more than her share.

"Hogging" can be largely eliminated if the purchaser always buys from her regular grocer, each one having a quantity of sugar on hand computed by his county administrator as sufficient to supply the needs of his customers. If purchasers travel from store to store in an effort to secure more than their allotment and if they succeed, just so much less sugar is available for the regular customers of the grocer from whom the sugar was secured. The result is that somebody gets left.

BUY IN YOUR CITY.

Exceptions to the request that sugar-buying be localized are approved in those cases where a person has habitually purchased groceries in the past from a dealer in some outside city or town or where there is no retail grocer in the town in which such a person lives. In these instances the purchaser may continue to buy from his old dealer.

"It is urgently requested that persons purchase their household supply of sugar, so far as possible, in the city or town where they reside," said Mr. Wigglesworth.

"The allotment of sugar made in each town is sufficient to allow each resident with two pounds per month for each member of the household. Obviously, if a person buys in an outside town he thereby deprives the residents of that town of some of their sugar. Buy of your regular dealer.

"The reason for this request is to help the food administration make the new plan of sugar distribution by retail grocers effective. County administrators have allotted sugar to grocers in proportion to their requirements.

ALL MUST HELP PLAN

"If the people of Massachusetts will co-operate in this plan the difficulties in the way of equitable distribution of sugar will be removed and no consumer should have difficulty in obtaining his proper ration. Any grocer or person who attempts to procure more sugar than his two pounds a month deprives some one else of his share.

"If the present plans work out successfully, as it is believed they will, the food administration will be able in the near future to allow the purchase of sugar in semi-monthly or quarterly amounts, instead of limiting every one to the two pounds at a time as at present."

UNFURL LOAN VICTORY FLAG AT CITY HALL

Boston's Honor Flag, the reward for sweeping $65,000,000 above the quota of $128,000,000 in the fourth Liberty Loan, is flying proudly from the City Hall masthead. An enthusiastic crowd, which cheered and applauded, witnessed its presentation to Mayor Peters today.

Mayor Peters received the honor emblem with a neat speech of thanks from a committee composed of Mrs Malcolm Lang, Charles F. Weed and Thomas B. Gannett.

The flag is of silk, 20 by 12 feet, or about four times as large as the average home flag. It was especially made by the National Honor Flag Committee.

Perkins won the flag owing chiefly to the spirited and friendly rivalry of the chairmen of the ward committees, the chairman of the ward whose name was Mayor Peters, Schoolmaster Commissioner Joseph P. Tomasney, Joseph A. Maynard, deputy collector of the port of Boston, and other men prominent in the business and public life in Boston.

Boston's gross total for the Fourth Liberty Loan was $193,222,900, which carried the city well above its quota of $128,000,000.

LISTED 14,061 BUYERS.

Had it been a contest of votes, instead of dollars, Commissioner Lomasney would have won for he and his committee accumulated 18,646 subscriptions from 14,061 persons.

As chairman of the Ward 8 committee Rooney Spring was awarded the silver cup donated by Governor Charles A. Morss of the Federal Reserve Bank for showing the greatest improvement in obtaining subscriptions for the fourth loan over the third. The committee secured pledges from 5,249 people amounting to $5,512,000, a gain in pledges of 43 per cent. and in money of 567 per cent.

The cup awarded by Executive Chairman N. Penrose Hallowell for the best per capita showing went to Joseph A. Maynard, chairman of Wards 5 and 16, with a total of 16,038 pledges, amounting to $1,701,000, or nearly 27 per cent. of the population.

FLAG 12 BY 20 FEET.

Mayor Peters' committee rolled up 1,802 subscriptions in Ward 22, amounting to $1,081,780, and though he did not receive a cup, he had the privilege of unfurling the honor flag from the mast at City Hall.

Henry P. Nawn, a well known business man, with his committee, raised $504,500 from 3,552 persons in Ward 16.

Altogether the twenty-six committees in the Boston district raised a total of $24,125,000 from 92,410 persons. This does not include the subscriptions of industrial organizations made through the trades' committee, nor a large number of individual subscriptions handled through the banks.

HARVARD S. A. T. C. MEN PASS FIRST CLASS TESTS

The Harvard unit of the S. A. T. C., who have just been examined for West Point, were pronounced by the examining surgeon, Major Arthur E. "Seldom are physicians called upon to pass judgment upon a finer set of men than the Harvard unit of the Students' Army Training Corps," remarked the major.

HUGE BROOM CROPS; PRICES MAY GO DOWN

Good news, housewives! The broom, which in two years arose from the lowly place of one of the most common and cheapest household necessaries to one of the most expensive, may drop to its former price, or at least to a reasonable price. According to the Department of Agriculture, this years crop of broom corn brush is 70,500 tons. This is 20,000 tons more than last year and almost 40,000 more than the crop of 1916.

HAIG EXPLAINS HINDENBURG'S ADVANCE

London, Oct. 22 (by British Wireless Press)—An interesting statement from Sir Douglas Haig, dealing with the fighting on the British front from last Winter to the end of April 1918, during which period the Germans launched their grand offensive in the St. Quentin and Lys sectors, is made public here today.

Sir Douglas points out that the disappearance of Russia as a belligerent enemy released a great number of German divisions and artillery units for operations on the western front. At this time Americans had not arrives in sufficient numbers to restore the balance of power. It became necessary, therefore, to change the British army from the offensive to the defensive.

This policy was put in hand as speedily as possible, the British commander states, but the great German attack was launched on March 21 and found the British heavily outnumbered.

HOW GERMANS FAILED.

The Germans, however, failed to divide the French and British armies as they desired, and a continuous defensive line was maintained, although it was necessary to give up a great deal of ground, which consisted in the main of territory despoiled by the Germans in their retreat of the previous year and which was not strategically valuable to the allies.

Dealing with the causes of retirement by the British Fifth Army (then commanded by General Gough) Sir Douglas adds: "In the first place the forces at the disposal of the Fifth army were inadequate to meet and hold an attack in such strength as that actually delivered by the enemy on its front. The extent of our front made it impossible with forces under my command, to have adequate reserves at all points threatened. It was therefore necessary to insure safety of certain sectors, which were vital and to accept risks at others.

"In certain sectors, particularly in northern and central parts of my front, it was of vital importance that no ground should be given up to the enemy. In the southern sector alone it was possible, under extreme pressure, to give ground to some extent without serious consequences, over the area devastated by the enemy in his retreat in the Spring of 1917. The troops holding this latter part of the front could fall back to meet their reinforcements which need not necessarily be pushed forward so far or so rapidly as elsewhere.

DEPENDED UPON FRENCH.

Moreover, the southern sector could be reinforced with French troops more easily than any other portion of the British line. I therefore considered it unsound to maintain a considerable force of reserves south of the River Somme, while it was yet unknown where and to what extent the enemy would commit his reserves. The Fifth Army was instructed early in February to and accordingly, both in regard to defensive preparation on the ground and in the actual conduct of the defence."

In conclusion, Sir Douglas calls attention to the fact that the region south of the Amigon river was only taken over by the British some seven weeks before the enemy's attack," a period insufficient to insure that a scheme of defence would be in efficient state of preparation." Labor also was scarce, the British commander declares. The enemy was aided in the advance, Sir Douglas adds, by the fact that the valleys of the Oise and Somme were not marshy as they usually are, but were easily negotiable by hostile troops.

"A much larger number of troops," the statement concludes, "would therefore have been necessary to render the defence of these rivers secure."

WALSH INSPIRES U. S. CORPS AT HOLY CROSS

Senatorial Candidate Delivers Patriotic Address to Students Training

Worcester, Oct. 22.—Holy Cross College was today officially turned into a United States Army Students' Training Camp with a corps membership of 900 students.

The buildings were profusely decorated with United States flags and streamers, while the color standards of the college lined the approaches to the administration building.

The orator was former Governor David I. Walsh, an alumnus of the college and now Democratic candidate for the United States Senate. He was given a tremendous ovation when introduced by the president of the college. He said:

"This is an eventful day in your life. You have, by your oath of allegiance, entered into a new life, entirely unlike that which you have lived heretofore. No longer is consideration of home, friends to hold first place in your thoughts and undertakings. From this day forth your country is to be first, you have solemnly consecrated yourself, your health, your strength and all of your faculties of mind and body to the service of your country. My country first—everything else in life is now secondary.

"Let me put your position in another way. Men and women everywhere have been striving during the last few weeks to sell Liberty Bonds—to get the people of our country to give, or rather lend, of their money to our government to help it finance this war. You have no money to give, but you are offering more—a billion times more—you are offering ALL to your country; your hope, your future, your manhood, your blood, aye, your life itself."

"If you need investigation, then read the stories that leak out from the back lines in France of the bravery and sacrifices of our fighting boys.

"Let me tell you of one: When Captain Leahy of the Lawrence company of the 26th, the 'Yankee' 1st Regiment, was mortally wounded a few weeks ago, and his young lieutenant was helping him back from the firing line, the captain, about to breathe his last breath, cried out: 'Lieutenant, the order is forward.'

"Young men of Holy Cross, the command is 'Forward'—forward, wherever your country commands, until the coming of that day—God speed the day—when victory will crown your service and send you home once more to loved ones, who will rejoice, all the more because of your service and your part in our triumph."

BRICKLAYERS' UNION TO PAY $4,000 VERDICT

The members of Bricklayers and Plasterers Union No. 26 will have to pay a verdict of $4,000 and costs obtained against them by F. Martineau & Company of Turners Falls in the Superior Court for Franklin County. The full bench of the Supreme Court today overruled the exceptions taken by the defendants. Martineau & Company are building contractors at Turners Falls, and in July 1915 took contracts for the erection of buildings, with contracts they were obliged to abandon because they were unable to get the services of bricklayers, who by a vote of the union on July 9, 1915 forbidden to work for the plaintiffs.

GRIP CONTINUES TO SPREAD IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 22.—Indications that the Spanish influenza epidemic in Greater New York has not yet reached its crest were seen today in official figures given out by the Health Board. During the last twenty-four hours 3,046 new cases of influenza and 2,662 new pneumonia cases were reported. There were 471 deaths from influenza and 298 from pneumonia.

HOTEL BAKER BEQUEATHS $26,000 TO RELATIVES

James Sullivan, unmarried, who for several years was employed as a baker at the Hotel Brunswick, where he died on October 16, provided in his will filed in the Suffolk Registry of Probate today, that $26,000 be paid to relatives, and that the Home for Destitute Roman Catholic Children and the Carney Hospital each receive $1,000.

GOMPERS CALLS WOMEN TO INDUSTRY

Message from the Head of Organized Labor in the United States to the Patriotic Women of New England

As it becomes necessary for men to leave industry and commerce to serve at the front, production essential for the military and civilian necessities must be maintained by women and by such men as can be released from dispensable activities.

Women coming into industry must receive equal pay with men who have been displaced or who are doing the same work. These standards would constitute safeguards against the unnecessary supplanting of men by women or their exploitation.

Those who come into war work should understand the necessity for maintaining the standards of civilian life, which rest upon economic standards. We must not fail in our patriotic duty of maintaining the rights and institutions of freedom which constitute our Republic.

Women must give service to win this war—That service must be given as members of society responsible for better conditions and higher standards for all, not as substitutes for men but as free women, mindful of their rights and duties, fighting a war for democracy and human justice shoulder to shoulder with men.

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Gompers is right. Women Must Help. They are vital links in the chain. Our war industries are perilously short of Men. Production must be increased if we are to win the war. Our fighters must be armed, fed and clothed AND KEPT SO. Women must fill the industrial gap. Manufacturers know it. They have opened the door. They are welcoming women.

IF MEN CAN FIGHT TO KEEP WOMEN SAFE, WOMEN CAN WORK TO KEEP MEN FIGHTING

The war is not yet won. Production must be kept up even if the war ends today. To stop one minute now would be fatal. Germany must come to President Wilson's terms or we won't talk peace. Women must work to keep our brave boys fighting and make the world safe for democracy.

This is one of a series of full page appeals to the women of New England, asking them to respond to the call of our nation and enter some line of industry to help win the war.

War Work MUST Be Increased
Women MUST Help
We MUST Win

MORGENTHAU TELLS HOW KAISER FORCED TURK'S HAND

CONSTANTINOPLE OVERAWED BY GUNS OF GOEBEN AND BRESLAU

tensive rights in South America and Africa.

All these conversations were as illuminating to me as Wangenheim's revelation of the conference of July 5. That episode clearly proved that Germany had consciously started the war, while these grandiose schemes, as outlined by this very able but somewhat talkative ambassador, showed the reasons that had impelled her in this great enterprise.

All through these talks, Wangenheim showed the greatest animosity to Russia.

"We've got our foot on Russia's corn," he said, "and we propose to keep it there."

CONTROLLED TURKEY.

By this he must have meant that Germany had sent the Goeben and the Breslau through the Dardanelles and by that masterstroke she controlled Constantinople. The old Byzantine capital, said Wangenheim, was the prize which a victorious Russia would demand, and her lack of an all-the-year-round port in warm waters was Russia's tender spot—her "corn." At this time Wangenheim boasted that Germany had 174 German steamers at the Dardanelles, that the strait could be closed in less than thirty minutes, and that Souchon, the German admiral, had informed him that the straits were impregnable. "We shall not close the Dardanelles, however," he said, "unless England attacks them."

At that time England, although she had declared war on Germany, had played no conspicuous part in the military operations; her "contemptible little army" was making its heroic retreat from Mons. Wangenheim entirely discounted England as an enemy.

A few weeks later civilization was outraged by the German bombardment of English coast towns, such as Scarborough and Hartlepool. This was no sudden German inspiration, but part of their carefully considered plans. Wangenheim told me, on September 6, 1914, that Germany intended to bombard all English harbors, so as to stop the food supply. It is also apparent that Germany ruthlessness against America sea inrade was no sudden decision of Von Tirpitz, for, on that date, the German ambassador to Constantinople warned me that I would be very dangerous for the United States to send ships to England!

CHAPTER VIII.

ALL EAGER TO KEEP TURKEY NEUTRAL.

In those August and September days Germany had no intention of precipitating Turkey immediately into the war. As I then had a deep interest in the welfare of the Turkish people and in maintaining peace, I telegraphed Washington asking if I might use my influence to keep Turkey neutral. I received a reply that I might do what I could, if I made my representations unofficially and purely upon humanitarian grounds.

As English and French ambassadors were exerting all their efforts to keep Turkey out of the war, I knew that my intervention would not displease the British Government, though, many, however, might regard any interference on my part as an unneutral act, and I asked Washington if there would be any objection.

His reply surprised me, though I saw through it afterward. "Not at all," he said, "Germany desires, above all, that Turkey shall remain neutral."

Undoubtedly Turkey's policy at that moment tilted in with German plans. Wangenheim was steadily increasing his ascendancy over the Turkish Cabinet, and Turkey was then keeping the entente on tenterhooks; it never knew where Turkey stood, whether she would remain neutral or enter the war on Germany's side.

Russia was compelled to keep large forces on the Caucasus, England was obliged to strengthen her forces in Egypt and India, and to maintain a considerable fleet at the Dardanelles. I am now speaking of the period just before the Marne, when Germany expected to defeat France and Russia with the aid of her ally, Austria, and to dictate the future of Europe.

WARY OF TURK GREED.

Should Turkey be actually engaged, she could do no more toward this victory than she was doing now. But should Germany win with Turkey's aid, she might find her new ally an embarrassment. Turkey would certainly demand compensation and would not be modest in her demands, which most likely would include full control of Egypt and perhaps return of Balkan territories.

Such readjustments would have interfered with the Kaiser's plans. These he had no intention in having Turkey as an active ally except in the event that he did not speedily win his anticipated triumph. But if Russia should make another process against Austria, then Turkey's active alliance would have great value, especially if her entry should be so timed as to bring in Bulgaria and Rumania as allies.

Meanwhile Wangenheim was playing a waiting game, making Turkey a pro-German, pro-Germany ally, strengthening her army and her navy and preparing to use her, whenever the moment arrived for using her to the best advantage.

The duel that now took place between Germany and the entente for Turkey's favor was a most unequal one. The fact was Germany had won when she smuggled the Goeben and the Breslau into the Sea of Marmora. The English, French and Russian ambassadors well understood this, and knew they could not make Turkey an active ally; they probably had no desire to do so, but they did hope that they might keep her neutral.

WHERE ENTENTE FAILED.

"You have had enough of war," they would tell Talaat and Enver. "You have fought two wars in the last four years; you will ruin your country hopelessly if you get involved in this one." The entente had only one consideration to offer Turkey for her neutrality, and this was to guarantee the integrity of the Ottoman Empire. The ambassadors showed their desire to keep Turkey out of the war by disinclination to press their case against the Breslau and the Goeben. It is true they repeatedly protested against the continued presence of these ships, but the Turkish officials maintained they were Turkish vessels.

"If that is so," Sir Louis Mallet would urge, and his argument was unassailable, "why don't you remove the German officers and crews?" That was the intention, the Grand Vizier would answer; the Turkish crews that had been sent to man the ships which had been built in England, he would say, were returning to Turkey and would put on board the Goeben and the Breslau; these crews came home and still Germany manned the cruisers. Those days dragged on and did not deceive the British and French. The presence of the Goeben and the Breslau was a standing menace, but the entente ambassadors did not demand their passports. Such action would have precipitated the crisis they were seeking to delay, and, if possible, avoid—Turkey's entrance on Germany's side.

Unhappily the entente's promise to guarantee Turkey's integrity did not win Turkey to their side.

WANGENHEIM'S CLEVERNESS

"They promised that we should not be dismembered after a Turkish war," Talaat would tell me, "and see what happened to European Turkey then."

Wangenheim constantly harped upon this. "You, can't trust anything they say," he would repeat. "Talaat and Enver, 'didn't they all go back on you a year ago?" And then with great cleverness he would play upon the only emotion which really actuates the Turk. The descendants of Osman hardly resemble any people I have ever known. They do not hate, they do not love; they have no lasting animosities or affections. They only fear. And naturally they attribute to others the motives which regulate their own conduct.

"They are afraid you are," Wangenheim would tell Talaat and Enver, discussing the English attitude. "Don't you see why the English want you to keep out? It is because they fear you. Don't you see that, with the help of Germany, you have again become a great military power? No wonder England doesn't want to fight you!"

Whatever may have been the attitude of Enver and Talaat, I think that England and France were more popular with all classes in Turkey than was Germany. The Sultan was opposed to war; the heir apparent, Youssouff Izzedin, was openly pro-ally; the Grand Vizier, Said Halim, favored England rather than Germany; Djemal, the third member of the ruling triumvirate, had the reputation of being a Francophile—he had recently returned from Paris, where the reception he had received had greatly flattered him; a majority of the cabinet had no enthusiasm for Germany; and public opinion, so far as public opinion existed in Turkey, regarded England, not Germany, as Turkey's natural friend.

PROPAGANDA THAT WINS.

Wangenheim, therefore, had much opposition to overcome, and the methods which he took to break it down form a classic illustration of German propaganda. He started a lavish publicity campaign against England, France and Russia. I have described the feelings of the Turks at losing their ships in England. Wangenheim's agents now filled columns of purchased space in the newspapers with bitter attacks on England for taking over these vessels. The whole Turkish press rapidly passed under the control of Germany.

Wangenheim purchased Dr. Adam, one of the largest Turkish newspaper owners, immediately began raising the praises of Germany and to abuse the Entente. The Osmanischer Lloyd, published in French and German, became an organ of the German Embassy. Although the Turkish Constitution guaranteed a free press, a censorship was established in the interest of the central powers. The Jeune Turc, a progressive newspaper, printed in French, was suppressed. A certain Baron Oppenheim traveled all over Turkey manufacturing public opinion against England and France. Ostensibly he was an archeologist, while in reality he opened offices everywhere from which issued streams of slander against the entente.

But Germany was doing more than poisoning the Turkish mind; she was appropriating Turkey's military resources. I have already described how, in January, 1914, the Kaiser had taken over the Turkish army and established it in preparation for the European war. He now proceeded to do the same thing with the Turkish navy. In August Wangenheim boasted to me that "We now control both the Turkish army and navy."

BRITISH MISSION RECALLED.

At the time the Goeben and Breslau arrived, an English mission, headed by Admiral Limpus, was hard at work restoring the Turkish navy. Soon afterward Limpus and his associates were unceremoniously dismissed; the manner of their going was really disgraceful, for not even the most ordinary courtesies were shown them. The English naval officers quietly and handsomely left Constantinople for England—all except the admiral himself, who had to remain longer because of his daughter's illness.

Night after night whole carloads of Germans landed at Constantinople from Berlin; the aggregations to the population finally amounted to 5,000 men, most of them sent to man the Turkish navy and to manufacture ammunition.

All this time the Germans were working at the Dardanelles, seeking to strengthen the fortifications, and preparing for a possible allied attack. As September lengthened into October, the situation became more critical. The Turkish fleet had been fitted for action, everything was ready, and the impetuosity of these Kriegaustige Germans officers could not much longer be restrained.

"They are just like a lot of boys with chips on their shoulders! They are simply spoiling for a fight!" he said.

CHAPTER IX.

SHOCK TO BRITISH AMBASSADOR

On September 27 Sir Louis Mallet, the British ambassador, entered my office in a disturbed state of mind. The Khedive of Egypt had that day left me, and I began to talk to Sir Louis about Egyptian matters.

"Let's discuss that some other time," he said. "I have something far more important to tell you. They have closed the Dardanelles."

By "they" he meant, of course, not the Turkish government, the only power which had the legal right to take this drastic step, but the actual ruling powers in Turkey, the Germans. Sir Louis had good reason for bringing me this piece of news, since this was an outrage against the United States as well as against the allies. He asked me to go with him and make a joint protest. I suggested, however, that it would be better for us to act separately, and I immediately started for the house of the Grand Vizier.

When I arrived a cabinet conference was in session, and, as I sat in the anteroom, I could hear several voices in excited discussion. Among them all I could distinctly distinguish the familiar tones of Talaat, Enver, Djavid, and other members of the government. It was quite plain, from all that I could gather through the talk in the partitions, that these nominal rulers of Turkey were almost overawed over the closing as were Sir Louis Mallet and myself.

TURKS IN DISTRESS.

The Grand Vizier came out to answer to my "call." He presented a pitiable sight. He was, in title at least, the most important official of the Turkish government, the mouthpiece of the Sultan himself, yet now he presented a picture of abject helplessness and fear.

"You know this means war," I protested.

All the time we were talking I could hear the loud tones of Talaat and his associates. I finally excused himself and went back into the room. He then sent out Djavid Bey, all a surprise to me, for Djavid's first words—this statement being a complete admission that the Turkish fleet had nothing to do with it. I repeated that the United States would not submit to closing the Dardanelles, that I had no place in the Sultan had no legal right to shut the straits to merchant ships except in case of war.

Djavid said that the cabinet proposed to investigate the matter; that, in fact, they were discussing it at that moment. He told me how it had happened. A Turkish minesweeper had passed through the Dardanelles and attempted to enter the Aegean. The British warships stationed outside hailed the ship, examined it and found that there were Germans officers on board. The English admiral at once ordered the vessel to go back. Under the circumstance, he had a right to do.

Weber Pasha, the German general who was then in charge of the fortifications, did not consult the Turks, but immediately gave orders to close the straits. Wangenheim had already boasted to me, as I have said, that the Dardanelles could be closed in thirty minutes and he Germans now made good his words. Down went the mines and the nets; the lights in the lighthouses were extinguished; signals were put up, notifying all ships that the straits were impassable; and it was done.

And here I certainly had a graphic picture of the extremities to which Teutonic bullying had reduced the present rulers of the Turkish empire. And at the same moment before my mind rose the figure of the Sultan, whose signature was essential to close legally these waters, quietly dining at his palace, entirely oblivious of the whole transaction.

I have described how Wangenheim, while preparing the Turkish army and navy for any eventualities, was simply holding Turkey in his hand. Intending actively to use her forces only in case Germany failed to organ France and Russia in the first campaign. Now that failure was manifest, Wangenheim was instructed to use the Turkish armies as an active ally. Midhat Shukri, the governor of Smyrna had been a passive partner; held back by Wangenheim until Germany had decided that it would be necessary to pay the price of letting her into the war as a real participant.

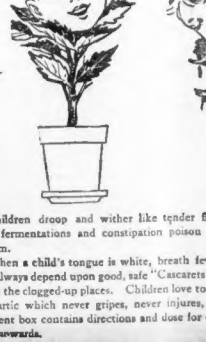
"When a Child Droops"

Hurry, mother! Relieve the little stomach, liver and bowels of souring food, bile and poisons. Look at the tongue! Children love to take harmless "Cascarets" because Cascarets taste like candy—only 10 cents too!



Children droop and wither like tender flowers if you permit bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison to be absorbed into the system.

When a child's tongue is white, breath feverish, stomach sour, you can always depend upon good, safe "Cascarets" to gently but thoroughly clean the clogged-up places. Children love to take Cascarets, the candy cathartic which never gripes, never injures, never disappoints. Each 10 cent box contains directions and dose for children aged one year old and upwards.

How To Avoid INFLUENZA

Nothing you can do will so effectually protect you against the Influenza or Grippe epidemic as keeping your organs of digestion and elimination active and your system free from poisonous accumulations.

Doctors health authorities everywhere are warning people of the danger of constipation, and advising, and urging everyone to see that the bowels and other eliminative organs act freely and regularly.

Ordinary laxatives, purges and cathartics, salts, oils, calomel and the like, are good enough to clean out the system, but do not strengthen the weakened organs; they do not build up vitality.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome constipation and get your system in such shape that you can feel reasonably sure of resisting disease. You can do so if you will just get a 25c. box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a while.

NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant, easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs, promotes digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, healthy appetite, strengthens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR Tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best. Sold and recommended by druggists.

ALLIED CHIEFS LAUD MEN OF THE 26TH

Major-General Edwards and his men of the Twenty-sixth Division have been highly complimented and praised by General Pershing, General Gouraud, General Mangin, General Mazel Mar, General Passaga and Generalissimo Foch in general orders issued by these commanders.

Probably one of the most treasured messages received by General Edwards and his men is that from Father Leclerc, cure of Rupt-en-Woevre, who writes as follows:

"Your gallant 26th American Division has just set us free. Since September, 1914, the barbarians have held the heights of the Meuse, have foully murdered three hostages from Mouilly, have shelled Rupt, and, on July 22, 1915, forced its inhabitants to seatter to the four corners of France. I, who remain at my little listening post upon the advice of my bishop, feel certain that I do but speak for Mgr. Ginisty, lord bishop of Verdun, my parishioners of Rupt, Mouilly and Genicourt, and the people of this vicinity in conveying to you and your associates the heartiest and most deserving gratitude of all.

WILL CARE FOR THEIR GRAVES.

"Several of your comrades lie at rest in our truly Christian and French soil. Their tombs shall be cared for as if they were our own. We shall cover their graves with flowers and shall kneel by them as their own families would do, with a prayer to God to reward with eternal glory these heroes fallen on the field of honor, and to bless the 26th Division and generous America."

Noting the leave taking from the 11th Corps of the 26th Division, General Maud'Huy, its commander, writes regretfully of the parting from the Americans with "their bravery—sense of duty and discipline—and frank comradeship. General Edwards has been pleased to consider the 11th Corps as godfather to the 26th Division; the 11th Corps feels proud of the awarded honor, being sure that, wherever he may be sent the godson shall do credit to the godfather."

104TH INFANTRY LANDED.

The 104th Infantry is particularly cited in genral orders by General Passaga of the 32nd corps, "for great-est fighting spirit and self-sacrifice." In a later order he commends the 103rd Regiment, Colonel Hume, "for a brilliant action, at Xivray and between Xivray and Seichepray. This operation shows the unquestionable superiority of the American soldier over the German soldier."

In noting the separation of the 26th Division from the 32nd Corps, General Passaga writes, "Under the distinguished command of their chief General Edwards, the high spirited soldiers of the 'Yankee Division' have taught the enemy some bitter lessons at Bois Brule, at Seichepray, at Xivray-Marvoisin; they have taught him to realize the staunch vigor of the sons of the Great Republic, fighting for the world's freedom."

General Gouraud commends the 101st Infantry for its raid on the Camp du Moulin, forwarding "his congratulations for this operation, as well planned as it was energetically conducted."

JAMES MIDDLEBROOK SEEKING HIS FATHER

James Middlebrook of No. 427 Pine street, Providence, writes to the AMERICAN:

"I wish you would please try and locate my father, who has been missing from home for several years. The last I heard of him he was running a garage in New York. His description was when last seen: Fair complexion, light brown hair, blue eyes, height 5 feet 10 inches, broad shouldered, weight about 148."

GEN. HAAN ESCAPES AS SHELL HITS U. S. DUGOUT

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 22.—An American lieutenant was wounded when an enemy shell made a direct hit on a dugout adjoining that of Major-General William G. Haan's of Indiana, commander of the Thirty-second division. General Haan was uninjured, but the dugout was destroyed and a horse was killed.

'SILENT MOMENT' FOR RED CROSS TOMORROW

Tomorrow a nation-wide observance of the "Silent Moment" will be inaugurated in all organizations of the American Red Cross. This is the date on which the chapters hold their annual meetings. The observance of the "Silent Moment" at noon has been universal in Great Britain and her colonies for some time. At a given signal at noon work is suspended in all workshops for one minute and the minds of the workers are concentrated on the soldiers and sailors with hope for their victory and good wishes for their individual welfare.

EPIDEMIC DAILY LOSING HOLD ON BOSTON

The grip is daily losing its hold.

In the twenty-four hours ending at noon today 105 new cases of influenza had been reported in Boston, as had six deaths from this disease. There was one death from pneumonia in the same period. This is a considerable decrease over yesterday's figures.

In the last twenty-four hours 201 new cases of influenza and eight deaths from that disease have been reported in New Bedford, 104 new cases and nine deaths in Lowell, and 276 new cases and no deaths in Worcester.

At the State House today it was stated that during the last few days 3,458 new cases have been found in 100 cities and towns throughout the State. Statistics were unavailable as to exactly how long a period this "few days" represented.

DANDRUFF GOES! HAIR GETS THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments. Try this!

Hair stops coming out and every particle of dandruff disappears.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.—Advertisement.

URGES ELECTION OF DEMOCRATS TO SENATE

Senator Gerry Points Out Need of Party Supporters for President

Washington, Oct. 21.—The American people do not want a government divided against itself, is the belief of Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee. A divided government, he pointed out in a statement today, would result from the election of a Republican Congress.

"There perhaps has never been a time in the history of our country when the decision of the voters was of such paramount importance as it will be on next election day," says the statement. "The effect of their action will be far-reaching, not only on the future of this country, but on that of all the world. For this reason it is essential that the issues involved should stand out sharp and clean cut. If President Wilson is to receive whole hearted support, if entire confidence and aid is to be given to him, if he is to stand forth as the spokesman of a united people, it can only be done by electing to the Senate men of his political faith.

MAINTAIN WAR POLICIES.

"To argue that a Democratic President can work with Republican Senators with the same degree of harmony, no matter how loyal they may be, is an absurdity, for a Republican majority in the Senate means a reorganization of that body, with a change in both the leadership and the complexion of the various committees.

"It would mean that Democratic chairmen who have been working with the President in these past trying years would be supplanted by men who are his political opponents. These men have literally criticised Woodrow Wilson in the past and are not in harmony with his political theories, and yet they are the men from whom he would be forced to seek advice and assistance.

"No matter how loyal they might be to their country, it would inevitably follow that they would try and shape the policy of the government and make it the policy of the Republican party instead of the policy of President Wilson.

"On this next election depends not only the question of how the war should be conducted, but also how America and the world is to be reconstructed when it is over. Woodrow Wilson must be left unhindered in the shaping of these policies if the principles of American democracy, humanity and civilization are to prevail.

"He has been foremost in crystallizing and formulating these great doctrines and is recognized throughout the world as their ablest exponent. But he cannot speak with the same force and power unless the foreign governments believe that the American people are in entire accord with him.

LOOKS TO NEW ENGLAND.

"It cannot be reiterated too often that a vote for a Republican Senator not only may aid in the election of a Republican to the upper house, but it may possibly mean the changing of the organization and leadership of that body from the President's political friends to that of his political opponents.

"In all the elections of Senators on November 5, I have no doubt that the Democratic administration will be patriotically vindicated.

"I have every confidence that the support so loyally given by the West two years ago will be repeated, and that New England will rebuke the reactionary forces that now control it by sending Democratic Senators to Washington."

"DYNAMITE GIRL" BEGINS EIGHTEEN MONTHS' TERM

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Linda Jose, known here as the "dynamite girl," today begins an eighteen months' sentence, having pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Landis to carrying a suitcase filled with dynamite from Youngstown, O., to Chicago last Summer. Her arrest on the time of the explosion, she had enough explosives in the bag to wreck half the business section.

LOBBY AT STATE HOUSE MUST GO, SAYS LONG

Interfering With People's Right, Declares Candidate on Stump

Vigorously charging that legislation in Massachusetts is controlled by a lobby which he will fight if elected, Richard H. Long, Democratic candidate for Governor, began his campaign with a series of eight rallies. In speeches at Woburn, Reading, Andover, Ipswich, Georgetown, Groveland, Newburyport and Amesbury, he declared that this lobby was attempting to elevate "its faithful servants to the speakership of the House, the presidency of the Senate, Lieutenant-Governor and Governor, in that order."

"In the six years of Democratic national administration," said Mr. Long, "there has been accomplished the enactment of more sound, progressive legislation than had been accomplished, or even sought, in a generation of Republican control. The great public utilities are now under public control, the power of the lobby has vanished, and Wall Street and State Street have been largely stripped of their power to advise or defeat legislation for benefit of their autocracy, which actually dominated the country in defiance of public will. A government 'of the people' has become a reality.

"To America, under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, the people of the world now turn for guidance and inspiration.

"Unfortunately, the same progress has not been made here in Massachusetts. The lobby is as powerful on Beacon Hill as at any time in the history of our State.

"This lobby is so powerful that it was able to defeat the forty-eight-hour bill for women and children, the eight-hour bill for tour workers in paper mills and the old-age pension bill, among others. Massachusetts is hardly the place to permit the perpetuation of an autocracy while 180,000 of our sons are baring their breasts in the world struggle for democracy."

WORCESTER BOY IS AGAIN OVER THE TOP

Worcester, Oct. 22. — Private Charles Joseph Quinn, Company G, 101st Regiment, who is with the American forces in France, has written a letter to his sister, Miss Gertrude Quinn of No. 2 Laelen street, dated "Somewhere in France, September 24, 1918," in which he tells of going over the top for the second time, "and it didn't seem as terrible as the first time." Many German prisoners were taken. Quinn adds: "To my surprise one of the prisoners began to converse with me in perfect English, and later told me he knew President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University."

GERMAN-OWNED METAL COMPANY TO BE SOLD

Washington, Oct. 22.—The American Metal Company, which is American only in name, will be sold on November 29 by A. Mitchell Palmer, alien property custodian. This company, whose stock is largely owned in Germany, has had the marketing of upward of 125,000,000 pounds of copper annually through contracts with prominent American mining companies, but its principal business of late has been in spelter, in which industry it has grown to the leading position among producers.

RELIEF FROM GRIP WAVE IN SIGHT IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Medical officers of this city are of the opinion today that the crest of the influenza-pneumonia epidemic which has taken toll of hundreds of lives has been reached, and that relief is in sight. Deaths from the epidemic reported yesterday were 375 and new cases 2,020.

THEATRES

"BILLETED" IS A MERRY ROMP

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Billeted" has a military sound, and the presence of a couple of British officers on the stage at the Hollis gives the play an air of warfare, but the truth is that Margaret Anglin's latest production has about as much to do with the war as Lake Superior, for they are launching lots of ships on Lake Superior.

It is one of those frail, gossamer, tea-table comedies that English authors used to grind out in such a way ever thought of the Germans as anything worse than objectionable tourists, and its military angle is of the slightest.

There isn't even any little German spy stealing around to make us feel at home, nor does anybody wave a flag from the rising of the curtain until the final descending of the same.

A MERRY ENTERTAINMENT.

With his customary dexterity in supplying dramatic incidents by the thousands you wouldn't think a dozen or English dramatists would bother with such a spider's thread of a plot as "Billeted" possesses, but yet P. Tetterton Jesse and R. M. Harwood have manufactured a very bright and merry entertainment out of nothing at all.

Brilliant dialogue, absurd situations, clever nonsense and fine acting the make "Billeted" something very delectable. The lines are chock full of fun, occasionally pithy and always sparkling and snappy.

It seems that Betty Taradine is a fascinating widow (grass), who has quite patriotically undertaken to billet a colonel and his adjutant in her house, although she lives alone with a girl friend, unmarried.

The sense of propriety of the vicar's sister, a strikingly feline person, causes her to protest against such and arrangement, whereupon the colonel feels constrained to move.

Betty decides to turn her "grass" into hay, and writes herself a telegram killing her husband. Once she is now a widow, the colonel has no longer any objection to remaining. Unfortunately the colonel's adjutant, who arrives upon the scene for the first time just after the murder, proves to be the errant husband, in the army under an assumed name. Enlisting a keen sense of humor, he joins the mourners.

FULL OF GOOD COMEDY.

The next two acts are full of good comedy between the four chief characters, and though the action sags, the dialogue is so bright that you are not bored.

Miss Anglin has grown a bit more pillowy since she was last in Boston, but her craft as a comedienne has not waned with the years. It was a delight to watch her weave her way through the mazes of one of the most whimsical characters ever put on the stage.

Fred Eric, as the live ghost, proved a hearty second to Miss Anglin in the fun making, and Langdon Bruce, as a colonel, elderly, but not old, got a lot of comedy out of his role. Miss Phyllis Barrett seemed to me to be an artificial ingenue, but most of the folks liked her, and she had some wonderful lines.

Harry Barfoot, as an amiable vicar, and Ralph Kemnel, as a Scottish bank manager, painted two striking characters, and Sally Williams in a few moments made an impression as an arid old maid. Myra Harrington, as a cook, did a capital bit.

BEACON AND MODERN THEATRES—The two first-run photoplays shown yesterday at he Beacon and Modern Theatres included the film debut of Will Rogers, the witty Westerner, who appeared in "Laughing Bill Hyde." The central character in a rollicking, jolly cowboy whose adventures take him to jail and out again and in paths of romance, all of which he endures with humor apparent in him. The other photoplay was "Out of a Clear Sky," picturing Marguerite Clark as an engaging little Belgian lady of quality combating the assiduous wooing of a German whom she does not love and succeeding to a young American who is a helper and lover. There were also shown short comedies and news pictures.

LANCASTER THEATRE—The Lancaster Theatre reopened yesterday with an excellent bill of photoplays. Clara Kimball Young was shown in "The Reason Why," a stirring story with a pleasant mixture of comedy, dealing with the modern set. The other photoplay showed the Lee children in a humorous story, "Swat the Spy."

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—The combined bill of vaudeville and motion pictures shown yesterday at Loew's Franklin Park Theatre included the Harvey De Vora Trio; Bob Mills; the concert force, "Devil Take to Mama"; George and Lily Gordon and on the screen, news pictures, a comedy, and the sensational serial picture, "To Hell with the Kaiser."

GAYETY THEATRE—Distinctly different from any other offering in burlesque is that of the "Star and Garter Show," presented at the Gayety yesterday. There is not one burlesque feature omitted from the splendid supply of laughs, down to the costuming of the female contingent of the organization. For this season's production the management has engaged the most talented and cleverest array of talent ever assembled for organization in burlesque. Florence Darling, the soubrette songbird, sang well and acted her part to perfection. Ray Head and Charles Burns, the comedians, are as good as any seen here this season.

ORPHEUM THEATRE — Prescott, the mind reader assisted by his wife with his co-partner, Hope Eden, headed the bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday. The exhibition of thought transference and divination given by them was startling, yet convincing. The balance of the bill included Wilkins and Wilkins, in a comedy skit; Phil Davis, singing comedian; Brown and Barrows, in a magical skit; Mahon and Morris, singing and dancing, and the Hennings. On the screen there were shown the latest news and war pictures, a Montgomery Flagg's Comedy, "Romance and Brass Tacks," and "Douglas Fairbanks in his new photoplay, "He Comes Up Smiling."

STAGE STARS PLEASING BOSTONIANS

Robert B. Mantell, as Richelieu at the Boston Opera House.

Margaret Anglin, appearing in "Billeted," at the Hollis Street Theatre.

Lillian Ross, as Jane in Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" at the Plymouth Theatre.

May Vokes, musical comedy favorite, in "She Took a Chance" at the Tremont Theatre.

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY AT TREMONT

Music more than usually tuneful, pretty girls more than usually pretty, gowns that were imaginative, settings that matched the gowns, a play with a real plot plus May Vokes—such is the play "She Took a Chance" which reopened the Tremont Theatre last night. The piece originally was a farce, by Fred Jackson, and now presented it is a musical comedy, the book and lyrics by Henry Blossom, the music by Viola Waldrop.

Now if Ned Pembroke hadn't written a bundle of letters, such as no cautious man ever should write to a woman with Vera for a first name, and if his mother, Mrs. Pembroke, hadn't been robbed of her necklace, and if George Howell, bridegroom and lawyer, hadn't been forced by press of business to run away the day after the wedding; and if Susie (May Vokes) hadn't been invested in Sioux City, there had been no plot and no play.

But Ned wrote the letters, and his mother was robbed, and never, never, through the three acts did chunky Susie, unloved of men, but still ambitious to be loved, forget the town of her nativity. As a maid servent Miss Vokes is more delightful than ever, taking her chance and—perhaps forgetting a husband into the bargain. Just after the curtain goes down.

At any rate, if she didn't it was not the fault of Susie. The play is not without its satire and delicious stage police came in for their share, to wit, in the song "Policeology," Eddie Dowling as the new cop, knowing less than nothing and glorying in the fact, did his share of the fun-making. Eleanor Gordon, beloved in Boston, pleased as the naughty, unmarried auntie. Fay Marbe as the Spanish dancer, Vera Verona, who's a vision of youth and all those Beautiful vampire writhings and fortunately not a few of them, gave Keith theatregoers have been educated to expect in the well brought up vampire. The setting, so far as acting is required in such a melange, the dancing and the singing gave much pleasure, as a full house and frequent calls bore witness.

Among the song hits "Rain from Sioux City," "Any Time New York Suits Me," "Bubbles," "Lovin' and "Every Time I Look at You I Love to Look Again," were especially well received.

"She Took a Chance" is pleasing entertainment of the lighter kind, with somebody singing or dancing or evolving themselves in laughable complications from rise of the curtain to its fall.

COMAN SQUARE THEATRE—A banner bill of vaudeville and motion pictures was shown at the Coman Square Theatre yesterday. Four varied acts were on the program, and on the screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and Constance Talmadge in the comedy, "Good-Night, Paul," a screening of the play of like title.

Favorite Pieces Which Continue

"MAYTIME," the dainty and bewitching operetta, which ran for many weeks at the Shubert, has moved to the Majestic and pleased a large audience last evening. Peggy Wood, William Norris and Charles Purcell head the brilliant cast.

"OH, LADY! LADY!," the cheerful and airy Princess Theatre success, reopens the Wilbur with the same long list of clever funsters and singers. The score, by Jerome Kern, is one of the most entrancing ever turned out by that prolific composer.

"FRIENDLY ENEMIES," with Lew Fields and Charles Winninger, has moved from the Plymouth, where another booking made it impractical to remain, and the clever war comedy will now continue its successful run at the Park Square.

"CHU CHIN CHOW," most massive and bewildering of musical dramas, will begin its Boston engagement at the Shubert Theatre tonight. The great cast includes Florence Herd, Lionel Braham, Tessa Kosta and George Baselly. The production will be given just as it was produced at the Manhattan Opera House.

"SEVENTEEN," Stuart Walker's production of the dramatization of Booth Tarkington's Willie Master stories, with the original cast, including Ruth Gordon and Gregory Kelley, has begun an engagement at the Plymouth. The piece will be reviewed in detail in Thursday's AMERICAN.

COPLEY THEATRE—"The Chinese Puzzle," in which Henry Jewett is to appear with his company, has been postponed until Wednesday night.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—A photoplay that shows some good even in the worst of men and enough excitement to satisfy anybody, is "Three Mounted Men," featuring Harry Carey at the Scollay Square Olympia this week. It is, without needless details, the story of a jail-bird with a mission. How he accomplishes that mission, yet how he fails, and yet wins the supreme gift of love, is better seen than read about, as is the wonderful work of Harry Carey in the play. The vaudeville bill for this week is excellent and includes Chief Tenderfoot, a redskin who is a good entertainer, Mack and Packo, in fun-making, American Sensations, and Selma Bratz and company.

GLOBE THEATRE—The program of photoplays shown yesterday and to continue unchanged at Harry Crull's Globe Theatre included the first showing of Douglas Fairbanks in his new photoplay, "He Comes Up Smiling," showing the energetic star as a shoe clerk who, upon losing his position, resorts to the road for a life of happy vagabondage. The other photoplay was "The Law of the North," a stirring story, with Charles Ray as the star role. The comedy was J. Montgomery Flagg's latest, "Romance and Brass Tacks."

TREMONT TEMPLE — "Crashing Through to Berlin" resumed its engagement at the Tremont Temple yesterday. This thrilling spectacle which has its immense drawing power through showing in graphic summary the stirring monarch of the great world conflict, is the apotheosis of drama enacted by millions of actors who actually lived their roles instead of playing them.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

MILLIONS USE IT TO STOP A COLD

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

Relief comes instantly.

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.—Advertisement.

MANTELL IN REVIVAL OF "RICHELIEU"

At the Boston Opera House last night Robert B. Mantell, the popular Shakespearian actor, opened a two weeks' engagement. His opening production was "Richelieu."

Always at his best in the many-sided part of the great statesman, Mr. Mantell made Richelieu a living, breathing man, courtly, menacing, genius.

The passion for France which swayed the Cardinal, which gave him strength when pain seemed inevitable, was convincingly portrayed.

As a historical portrait of one of the greatest of France's statesmen Mr. Mantell's conception of the character was remarkably true. The old fox stood forth in all the cunning, resource and invincible courage which historians have ascribed to him. Possibly Mr. Mantell gave to the character an underlying vein of sweetness and humor which the real Richelieu did not possess, but if not it was an addition which added immeasurably to the human appeal of the part.

Always Mr. Mantell kept before the audience the picture of an old and physically feeble man surrounded by enemies, fighting a life and death battle for France and the few human beings whom he loved. The atmosphere of aristocracy and dignity which traditionally envelop the part were drawn aside to show the human man. The lightning flashes of power which enable Richelieu to sweep aside his physical weakness and his enemies at once were strikingly brought out by Mr. Mantell.

In the cast were many faces long associated with Mr. Mantell's company. Genevieve Hamper as Julie de Mortemar was charming in the early scenes with her guardian, and showed both power and pathos in the tragic moments of the last act. Frank Gilmer, as Adrian de Maurier, the role he played during Mr. Mantell's last appearance in Richelieu in Boston, was a dashing and romantic lover. He looked the part to perfection and gave to the character all the reckless abandon of the character as drawn by Bulwer Lytton. The rest of the cast were adequate.

The stage settings were magnificent and the costumes were gorgeous.

The other announcements for the first week are "Hamlet," tonight and Friday night; "Macbeth," Thursday night, and "The Merchant of Venice" at both matinees.

Coming Attractions

Castle Square Theatre—"Cheating Cheaters" will be the play for the opening week of the new stock company season at the Castle Square, beginning Monday evening, November 4, under the management of George E. Clark. It will be cast effectively, with Audrey Ayres and Ann Macdonald in the leading roles, and with William C. Masson as stage director. There will be a weekly change of bill at the Castle Square which will enable Boston theatregoers to see a great variety of recent Broadway successes, both dramas and comedies.

Colonial Theatre—The Colonial Theatre reopens next Monday with the Cohan and Harris musical comedy production, "Going Up," one of the most pronounced successes of last and this season's successes in New York, for its engagement has extended through both, as it finishes its forty-fifth week in the metropolis next Saturday night. "Going Up" comes directly to Boston with the entire cast intact, among which are many entertainers notable on the American stage.

WAR PLAYLET FEATURE AT KEITH'S

Although not booked as the headliner, Jack Norworth's sketch, "Home Again With Dorothy," is easily the best number on the bill at Keith's Theatre this week. It is one of the best war sketches that has been seen in Boston. There are five persons in the act. Chief of these are Ensign Hinckley as a sergeant and Jacqueline Lyrle, as the French Red Cross nurse.

Jack Norworth was a big hand last night but he is using a lot of old stuff on T. R. and Wm. J. Bryan. I don't like the dropping of it. He got a big hand when he told the audience that he must leave to attend a banquet given by Jimmy Hussey and Mr. and Mrs. Hussey, to bear again in mind the recent resignation of Jack Wolf, one of Keith's press agents.

Gerald Kerr and Lillie Weston are billed as the dancers and the word describes them accurately. Miss Weston is one of the prettiest girls that I have seen at Keith's in many a day. Her partner is good, too. They were given a big hand.

Bruce Richmond and Mary Gray are presenting a new act this week. It is called "The Piano Movers" and is a scream.

Lydia Barry and Harry Hines were also liberally applauded. Miss Barry is a clever comedienne and Mr. Hines is a good straight man.

Lydia Gilfoy in female impersonations, assisted by Jack Conway, is the headliner at the Orpheum this week. Miss Gilfoy is a clever artist and her work is good. The act is a novel one and is well staged.

Ethel Green and Co. were also liked. The sketch was a scream.

Ryan and Lee, comedy acrobats, were good. Their work is original and clever.

Lydia Barry and Harry Hines in a dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ayres in "Home Again" are the headliners at the Scenic Theatre this week. The sketch is a scream from start to finish. Mr. Ayres has been invited to appear in Washington, D. C., next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayres are assisted by Master Gabriel, a child actor of unusual ability. He is a clever little actor and will undoubtedly be heard from in the future.

Others on the bill are Ryan and Lee, comedy acrobats, who have

Not a Foreigner

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—I have been engaged for a year and have been urged to marry a [illegible] I was a foreigner. I am anxious to know if I was [illegible] doing the right thing in marrying him. He was in this country a few years before the war started. I have been told by my friends that I would be making a mistake to myself by marrying a foreigner at this time. I neglect men as he expects to go over there soon to do his share for America, the country in which he has been making his home. MARIE.

If your fiance expects to fight, he is an American citizen and doubles far more than to this country than the "friends" who have given you such meddlesome advice.

Improves on Nature

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—Am seventeen years of age and a young man has asked me to marry him. My mother declared me [illegible] I was some years old and two years ago I heard she died a widow. My friend says my father [illegible] her death notice specified widow. [illegible] I confess I would need no one's consent to marry.

Do you think this young man has a right to [illegible] what he did? I use [illegible] and powder [illegible] and have a haircut [illegible] Am I shirking my duty as a wife? I don't want to marry him. He is [illegible] down on [illegible] as I have no mother. M. B.

YOUR letter strikes me as a bit too flighty for one considering the serious step of marriage. You seem to think life is arranged on the plane of a "beauty parlor" and so it is for some women, but they are not the women who count. My sympathy is entirely with the young man. He must have extraordinary forbearance to be willing to marry a girl who does all these things to herself. I should think he would feel as if he were courting a figure in a pawnbroker's window.

Sardine Toast

One can sardines in oil, 1 tablespoonful salt, 2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice, 12 slices oatmeal bread, 2 teaspoonfuls prepared mustard, 4 tablespoonfuls margarine, 3 tablespoonfuls barley flour, 1 cupful milk, ½ teaspoonful salt for sauce, ¼ teaspoonful pepper.

Drain the sardines and mash. Make into a paste with the salt, lemon juice and mustard and spread between slices of bread which have been spread with margarine, using two tablespoonfuls. Toast a golden brown. Serve hot with medium thick white sauce poured over them. The sauce is made as follows: Melt the rest of the margarine and add the flour. Cook until it begins to bubble. Add the cold milk gradually and cook until the mixture thickens. Season with salt and pepper. Serve at once.

MAKING SOUP FASHIONABLE

Making soup fashionable—that is one of the things we expect to do this year, says [illegible] one of the [illegible] Science [illegible] famous [illegible] contributor on cookery, is [illegible] series of articles [illegible] subject [illegible] Also articles you won't want to miss on Health, Beauty and the Home" in the next

SCHOOLBOY IS SECOND BRICKLEY

Pal Hunneman's Flashy Drop-Kicking Features First Day's Drill on Soldiers Field

Coach Pooch Donovan made up three army football teams for practice at Harvard and the trio ran up and down Soldiers Field in snappy fashion. The best looking eleven was made up of former high school stars.

It included Halfback Harry Waddle, who formerly captained Watertown High; Joe Fearing, who was regular fullback at Kent School; Dewey Brady, who held down a back field berth at Clinton High for three years, and Hap Porter, Dorchester defeated Everett High with three touchdowns while playing fullback for Colby Academy.

In the rush line were Jack Pratt, a former St. George's School star; Charley Griffin, who played guard at Andover; Frank Johnson, for three years regular centre on Charley Cuddy's Swampscott High eleven, and Josh Nickerson, of Exeter.

HUNNEMAN GOOD PROSPECT.

Pal Hunneman, former captain of Noble & Greenough, is showing some sweet drop-kicking. His easy style swings the pigskin over the bars from all angles. Hunneman's build is that of a regular all-around back and, in an ordinary year, he would be a freshman find. Pal should prove a big asset for the army eleven.

The navalists, with their hefty exams and drill over, were expected to report in large numbers this afternoon. Stan Coleman is helping Donovan with the coaching, and Ensign Bill Snow was expected out today.

Another former star who may help out occasionally is Jimmy O'Brien, ex-halfback star at Hingham Tech and Holy Cross. O'Brien is master-at-arms at Weld Hall, one of the three Harvard naval barracks.

ROWING SQUAD AT IT.

A score or more new candidates were looked for at rowing headquarters this afternoon. Coach Haines so far has had but few men to handle, but he has already put them to work on the rowing machines. Coxman Mosher has oiled up the engine of "The Pup," and Haines may follow some of his charges later in the week from the launch.

Soccer candidates were also to be called out today. Jack Diamond, former varsity coach, may take charge of the squad.

PLYMOUTH BOY TO LEAD HARVARD'S ARMY TEAM

J. Frank Brown of Plymouth, Harvard's first football captain for 1918. The twenty members of the junior army squad have elected their leader. Brown prepared for Harvard at Andover and played guard on the academy team. He is a big, athletic footer and weighs 185 pounds.

Shortly after Brown's election the naval squad met and elected Alfred (Goose) Reilly, former Holy Cross star, its pilot.

MELROSE CITY HEADS TO SUPPORT SCHOOL ELEVEN

If enthusiasm assists any in winning football games, Melrose High will have a championship team this Fall, as the entire city government has vote to accept the invitation of Coach Tip O'Neil and attend every game in a body.

Milford High Still Idle

The Milford High eleven will not resume practice until the influenza ban is lifted and school resumed. An effort will be made to have the game with St. John's High of Worcester, scheduled for Saturday, postponed until Thanksgiving Day morning. Wayland High or Concord High will play in Milford November 23.

News from Football Camps.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—Head Coach Bob Folwell of Pennsylvania may not appear on the football field for the Quakers again this year. He is slowly recovering from an attack of pneumonia, which he contracted and remains in a very weak condition. Silvio Aichbeck, a Chinese student, has been assigned to an end berth on the scrub team. The Pennsylvania Athletic Club has been selling to Graduate Manager Bushnell.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—Many of those low drills from which the football men are not excused was on the schedule at the Naval Academy. Some time was spent in signal work and practice on the formation of the forward pass in preparation for the game with Syracuse next Saturday. Captain Bonsel, Butler and Sexton will probably be in the backfield.

Aleck MacLean Is Off to France as K. of C. Athletic Director

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Aleck MacLean, well-known Greater Boston sporting man, sails for France tomorrow by company with a new batch of Knights of Columbus athletic directors.

The president of the Armory A. A. plans being on hand at tonight's boxing show at the Arena, and it goes without saying he will be kept busy shaking hands with his legion of friends. He will board the midnight train for New York and expects to be on the briny by noon.

MacLean, a bicycle rider of national renown in his younger days, has spent an entire lifetime in sport. Quitting bikedom, he took up the management end of the fighting game.

Aleck handled Jack Johnson when Lil' Artha was making a bid for fame and fortune in the Queensberry world, and, later, paved the way for the big black's rise up the ladder. He was a sensation in America and had Jack well press accented, though finally losing control of him, and it was Sam Fitzpatrick, Walter Little and Tom Flannagan who really made the big mogul with the ear a heavyweight champion.

Of late years Gilbert Gallant, game little Matty Baldwin, Sandy Ferguson, Freddie Yelle, Joe Morgan and George Alger were the best of the boys MacLean handled and brought up the line. He was one of the organizers of the Atlas A. A. and since the Hub's old boxing plant switched its name to the Armory A. A. has been serving as its president and matchmaker.

MacLean has also been pulling off the six-day bicycle race at the Arena annually. He's done his bit by sport and made his bit.

Of the slugger came your way;
You speared the hop, and tried to stop
The batter—in your day.

You took them soft, you took them hard,
And smothered every whack;
You had the nerve to make over the goal-
Nor ever "started back."

You didn't dodge the call to arms,
Or try to pick "a cinch;"
But did your bit—and had to hit,
So stepped up "in the pinch".

You tried to save the game that time
The "going" was against you;
With courage rare, you took was there

10 Years Ago In Sport World

AT the National Women's golf championships, held at Washington, Miss Kate Harley of Fall River, defeated Margaret Curtis of Boston, title-holder, in the third round of play.

PHILADELPHIA Jack O'Brien, explaining how fighters make weight, says: "The youngster who grinds himself down making weight robs his future of some fine fights. The fellow who has not reached the age of maturity should never retard nature by weight reduction." (Here's a good tip for you youngsters. Philadelphia Jack was one of the smartest men in the ring and knew what he was talking about.)

IN the third game of the Class B amateur billiard tournament, played at the Hub billiard rooms, Franklin defeated Haffelin, 200-178. Edwards and Bishop met tonight.

PACKY McFARLAND, Stockyards champion, gave Leach Cross the finest whipping of his career at the Fairmont A. C., New York. Packy was on top of Cross from the opening bell, and, when the final whistle sounded in the sixth round, Leach was barely able to keep on his pins. A game little fighter, Packy, but send Cross down for the count of five in the third round, was floored three times in fourth, slipping on the wet canvas once, and taking the floor on the other two occasions from some of Packy's snappy punches. One of the largest crowds that ever turned out to witness a boxing show in this part of the country was on hand. More than 1,000 fans were unable to gain admission.

YOUNG LOUGHREY of Philadelphia, and Tommy Quill of Brockton, champion welterweight of New England, meet in the star bout of twelve rounds at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night.

In a letter to a friend in this country, Jimmy Reilly, writing from London, says he intends to head a fight club along the same lines as the one he established at the Battle of Loos. "When I get it going," says James Edward, "black fighters will not be allowed to meet on the level. Blacks will meet blacks, and whites will meet whites."

THE scheduled bout between Ad Wolgast and Freddie Welsh has been called off, as the boys couldn't agree on weight.

THE Harvard football players and coaches left for Baltimore, where they will remain until Saturday morning. They meet the Navy team at Annapolis Saturday afternoon.

Four Classy Pairs to Mingle in Triple-A Ring Tonight

By RINGSIDE.

While the opening boxing card of the week, scheduled at the Arena tonight, has no champions listed, the indications are that the fans will see plenty of hard hitting and action.

Barney Adair, the New York boy who flattened Shaver O'Brien as flat as a pancake for the count of nine a few months ago, again faces the South Boston southpaw. Shaver is out to even up matters. All this pair has to do is to repeat their previous setto and everybody will be satisfied.

If Walter Lauretta is half as good as some New Yorkers would have us believe, Walter Butler, Providence wonder, might as well sit at the beach; he hasn't a Germans chance of winning. At that, Butler has never been a cinch for the Class B boys, and if it doesn't end in a draw, Walter should win.

Bobby Josephs bumps into the hardest little foe he's ever been up against when he tackles Charley Mitchell in the opening tenrounder. Bobby has yet to lose a decision since joining the pro fessionals, and, as the wise ones see in him the making of a good little youngster, he's expected to come though against the cagey Providence lad.

Kid Francis of Lawrence and Chick Suggs of Newport, R. I., open the show. Both are carded to travel twelve rounds.

SAILOR SACCO ON TRAIL OF CRACK 135-POUNDERS

Sailor (Young) Sacco, East Boston lightweight, who has cleaned up many of the best in this vicinity is anxious to get a crack at some of the big ones. He has matches pending with Lew Tendler, Philadelphia south-paw, who made such short work of Frankie (Young) Britt, and George Chaney of Baltimore.

Sacco would like to meet Harry Carlson or Britt before one of the Boston clubs; in fact, he has no one named by Mlah Murray or Bob McKirdy.

B. C. High Plays at Quincy

Boston College High and Quincy High were to clash on the latter's gridiron this afternoon.

ROCKEFELLER GIVES 1,200 MEDALS FOR DRIVE WEEK GOLF

New York, Oct. 22.—John D. Rockefeller has donated 1,200 "Victory Medals" to the United States Golf Association. This was announced by William W. Hoper, secretary of the sports committee of the United War Work campaign. These medals will be competed for by golfers throughout the country during the week of the $178,500,000 drive (November 11-18) for the benefit of our soldiers and sailors.

Since his boyhood days John D. has been an admirer and a player of the ancient game. Practically everybody knows this. But few are aware that Marshal Foch is a great enthusiast of golf. On each of the medals Rockefeller has donated is struck a picture of the generalissimo of the allied armies.

Postoffice Employes and Higher Salaries

In a confidential "round robin" letter to the editor all the employes of one of the larger suburban postoffices have appealed to the AMERICAN to help the postal employes in their effort to obtain a larger salary increase than the Postoffice Department has yet consented to grant.

The letter points out that although a nominal raise of $200 was granted last July its full benefit was realized ONLY BY THOSE WHO HAD BEEN LONG ENOUGH IN THE SERVICE TO BE DRAWING THE MAXIMUM PAY. Nearly half the men in this particular office would have been entitled under the old rules to a yearly increase of $100 anyway, so that they are in reality only $100 better off than if no general raise had been granted at all. In other words, the men in the full-paid, $1,200-a-year grade now get $1,400, but the men who, for instance, would have been promoted this year from the $1,100 grade to full pay are getting but $1,300, or only $100 more than they had a right to expect in any event.

The men also claim with justice that EVEN $2,000 A YEAR WOULD BE IN PURCHASING POWER A SMALLER SALARY THAN $1,200 WAS A FEW YEARS AGO, and that it is now no easy matter for a man with a family to support to make both ends meet on $25 a week or less.

The question which this letter raises is one of the most difficult and perplexing of all the internal problems confronting the war administration. It is true beyond doubt that IN A TIME OF RISING PRICES ALL SALARIED EMPLOYES ARE AT A DISADVANTAGE, and now more at a disadvantage than ever BECAUSE THE RISE OF PRICES HAS BEEN MORE RAPID AND MORE GENERAL THAN EVER BEFORE. But though it may seem at first thought an easy matter to meet the situation by raising salaries to correspond with the rise in prices, the solution of the difficulty is not by any means so simple as salaried workers are inclined to suppose.

In order to attract to shipyards and munition plants the skilled and unskilled labor, without which the means of winning the war could not be supplied, the government has been obliged to pay, directly or through contractors operating on a cost-plus basis, wages so high as to enable many workers to earn for the time being much more than enough to compensate them for the general rise of prices. In other industries, such as the transportation service, which are INDIRECTLY, BUT JUST AS ESSENTIALLY, INDISPENSABLE to carrying on the war, the War Labor Board, in order to keep the employes on the job at all when munition wages are so tempting, has been forced to offer increases which, though less than munition workers' earnings, are higher than the postoffice clerks and letter carriers have obtained, and much higher than salaried workers in private employ have been granted. BUT INEVITABLY AND ALWAYS THE IMMEDIATE RESULT OF THESE WAGE INCREASES HAS BEEN TO RAISE THE PRICE OF THE PRODUCT, AND TO FURTHER INCREASE, DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY, THE HIGH COST OF LIVING of which the postal employes complain.

Take, for instance, the raises recently granted to the railroad and street railway employes. These at once created deficits in revenue which had to be met either by increased charges for service or by increased taxation, and we must all pay more in consequence for being carried to and from our daily tasks, and also for every article of food, fuel or clothing that is transported by rail.

The problem that we are up against is the problem of the endless chain. Every general rise in prices calls for a general rise in wages to make up for the higher cost of living, and every general rise in wages brings a new rise in prices and boosts the cost of living one notch higher yet—and so on, world without end.

Evidently a halt must be called somewhere, and evidently when it is called some or all of us must submit to sacrifices of real income—of income measured by its purchasing power. All that the government or any wage-fixing authority can reasonably be expected to do is to distribute the sacrifices as equitably as possible. And they will be distributed equitably only when the heaviest burdens are laid on the shoulders best able to bear them.

This is the policy which the administration is pursuing in the graduated taxation of large incomes and in special taxation of the excess profits of corporations—a policy which Senator Weeks and his allies propose to reverse if they gain control of the national purse-strings through the election of a Republican Congress in November. But the net profits of all the great industrial monopolies are still abnormally high after all war taxes are paid, and taxing them does not tend to lower prices at all, but only to make of profiteering a pump to draw taxes, disguised as excess prices, out of the pockets of all the people and into the national treasury. TO DISTRIBUTE THE BURDENS OF A RISING COST OF LIVING AS EQUITABLY AS THE DIRECT COSTS OF THE WAR ARE NOW DISTRIBUTED BY FEDERAL TAXATION is a feat that no government has yet accomplished, and a problem that no political economist has solved.

Raising the pay of the postal employes has one great advantage in the fact that it would not directly affect the cost of living, but would only make increased taxation necessary by lessening the revenue derived by the government from the postal service. This consideration, together with the strong case of hardship that the postal employes undoubtedly make out, may bring before long the relief for which they plead. If it does not, they have at least the consolation that the prices that have gone up like a rocket must sooner or later come down like the stick, AND WHEN THEY DO COME DOWN IT IS THE SALARIED WORKERS, AND NOT THE WAGE-EARNERS, THAT WILL HAVE THE UPPER HAND.

Their sacrifice, however severe, is but temporary, and by present indications the turn can hardly be very long delayed. The increased pay the postal employes are now receiving is indeed granted for one year only, but it will probably never be taken from them, and the time will soon come again when the old purchasing power of a dollar will be fully restored, AND WHEN THE POSSESSOR OF A PERMANENT JOB AT $1,400 A YEAR WILL AGAIN BE ENVIED BY A VERY LARGE PROPORTION OF THOSE WHO DEPEND ON THEIR DAILY EARNINGS FOR THEIR DAILY BREAD.

Beware!

"What Is Your Attitude Toward Labor?"

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

There are many positions against labor. There is only one attitude possible TOWARD labor. That is the reply of this newspaper to one who asks for a definition of its "Labor Attitude."

What labor is, the world has been taught by this war.

It is not something that can be defined merely as a thing accomplished by muscular power or mechanical skill.

Every human being not a parasite is a laborer.

The man who digs the ditch is no more a laborer than the engineer who plans the ditch, and makes the labor useful and efficient.

The man on the battleship, operating the wireless telegraph, is a laborer, and a laborer was Marconi when, through years of discouragement, he worked and labored, mentally, at the wireless telegraph problem.

The man who stands half naked in the heat inside the iron hull driving red-hot rivets labors. But his labor is less exhausting than that of the President who carries the load of national responsibility—the hardest labor on this earth. The clerk behind the counter labors; so does the chief manager, with responsibility and anxiety added to hard work.

When men speak of an attitude toward labor they refer usually to organized labor, representing the natural method by which workers protect themselves against selfishness and the public against inefficiency.

Mechanical labor protects itself, as the doctors protect themselves, with rules and certain tests of skill, and as the stock brokers protect themselves, beginning work at ten in the morning and stopping at three, and punishing with expulsion any man violating the Stock Exchange union rules, by working before ten or after three—a five-hour day.

The extent to which the world attitude on labor has changed can be quickly expressed in a brief quotation from La Martine. He was a great Frenchman of sincere democratic mind, believing in the people, yet he could say: "You might place me before the muzzles of those guns before you would make me sign these two words associated together 'Organization of Labor.'"

The French poet-statesman and democrat believed that the combination of words ORGANIZATION AND LABOR would mean destruction to society.

Today the intelligent man knows that labor without organization is labor inefficient.

From the moment men were recognized as equal before the law, the right of workers to organize for greater protection and efficiency was recognized as a matter of course. The right of organization is recognized by the United States Government, which recently, through the President, threatened to take over and operate a manufacturing concern that discriminated against organized labor.

The right of organization is not only recognized but welcomed by the intelligent employer. He knows that his profits come from the pay of those that work; that his welfare depends on the general welfare—there is no profit in a department store in China, where you can hire men for eight cents a day.

And the intelligent employer asks only fair competition. Let him hire good workmen, paying as much as the other employer, paying no MORE, and he will take his chances. The right kind of citizen does not want to depend for his profit on his ability to pay his fellow citizens too little.

More Truth Than Poetry

Too Much Conservation

WE heaved a deep, contented sigh when turkeys towered toward the sky.
Said we: "We'll eat some cheaper meat
Upon Thanksgiving Day.
Some simple substitute we'll find, and, when we pleasantly
have dined,
We'll not regret that what we et
Cost all our last week's pay.

"WE need not feed a week or two on turkey hash and turkey stew
And turkey wings and other things
Disguised in various ways.
We need not see with dumb despair the same thing on our bill of fare,
Despite our howls and groans and growls,
For days and days and days."

AND so to set our mind at ease we asked our wife if she would please
Provide some food both cheap and good
To furnish forth our feast.
"We do not give a rap," said we, "what kind of victual it may be
Or what we pay the following day
We'll have a change at least."

ALAS! how vain the dreams of man, how vainly does he scheme and plan!
Let us not waste more words, but haste
To end this painful tale.
Of what is left of our repast there's going to be enough to last
The whole year round; we just have found
Our wife has bought a whale!

ARMY WILL MAKE, NOT BREAK, MEN

AN interesting survey on morale and the effect of army life on them, concluding with expression of the positive belief that service in France will make every man a better man, is contained in the following letter from Lieutenant Homer M. Hu...an of the 301st Infantry to his father, H. D. Hugman, a Back Bay druggist:

"Dear Father—Found another letter awaiting me this afternoon when I got back from work, and this made the seventh that I have now received from home. Keep up the good work. Letters are the best little thing a person over here can get, and nothing can take their place. There is opportunity to buy everything else that one needs, from a paper of pins to material for a new uniform, and our mess commissaries handle all sorts of eatables, but I've yet to find a shop where they sell letters from the States. There "ain't no such animal," as the farmer said when he looked at the giraffe.

"It is really wonderful how thoroughly the army has made provision for the comfort of its men! As far as supplying them with the actual necessities of war, clothing, ammunition, etc., why that is taken as a matter of course. But they have gone beyond this, and figured that it is pretty good business to do a little more than just give a man three square meals a day and a place to sleep and material to work with, so they've provided means of obtaining candy and preserves and cigarettes an' tobacco of all sorts and hundreds of other such things, and all at prices far below those in the States. Without exaggeration, there is nothi..; that the soldiers want that we can't buy over here.

"Is it any wonder we insist on his being cleanly shaved at all times? He is well supplied with clothing, and it's kept in good repair at all times, and his meals would make a fat man out of him in a month if he weren't worked pretty hard.

"All in all, what I've seen of the American soldier, and I've seen a good many in my travels, convinces me that he's just about the best cared for individual one could hope to find.

"What changed men they will be when they get back! I know it has always been the popular impression that the army wrecked many a man. Maybe it does. But given ten thousand of the men in the National Army and ten thousand civilians, other things being equal, such as age, general condition of health before entering the army, etc., and I'll bet that the soldier will be far and away the better man at the end of, say, two years' time. I know it, for I've had a full year in which to see it work out.

"Back at camp last year, twelve months ago, we had a pretty hard lot thrust upon us. Among them many excellent men, of course, but there were equally as many fellows who had been more or less bumming around all their lives. Many had never had restrictions of any sort placed on them. But bit by bit they absorbed it and you should see them now! They tried, at first, to carry a good many of their civilian habits into the army; the traditional weekly "drunk" hit it up on his week-end leave and showed up Monday morning feeling pretty rocky. Well, if he were not in the army he could have taken things easily that day and gradually sobered off.

"But no such luck for him, now that he had put on a uniform! Monday became a mighty blue sort of a day for him if he hadn't lived pretty straight over Saturday and Sunday. We took a delight in soaking it to him on that day, and finally it dawned on him that he would have a much pleasanter time of it if he was in good shape, so he quieted down and began to get into the habit or taking things easy on his leaves so that he would feel all right when the week's work started. That was his first big step.

"Then he saw it was no use trying to escape the sergeant's eye when he fell in late at formations; he saw it was no use trying to conceal a missing button or a dirty rifle at inspection.

"And what more than this, observing the rules and doing his work, will be demanded of him when he returns to civilian life? He is going to go back to business with the conviction that he has got to abide by rules and has got to run things systematically and has got to keep himself in good shape if he wants to have a good time.

"It's not a question of high morals or anything of the sort; it's simply a case of his being taught, through his looking around and seeing how things are run in the army, that he can't have a good time unless he does things more or less 'by the book.'

"It's all very well to preach to him and hand him nicely written pamphlets with flowers painted on them, but that doesn't prove much of anything; he's a pretty hard-headed sort of individual and he's a pretty hard worked cuss, and he wants results, not words.

Kaiser Prays for Rain. Forgive Our Debtors. Who Will Pay the Bill?

—By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1918.)

The program seems to be to FIGHT ON INTO THE WINTER.

The Kaiser does not know, apparently, that the end of his dream is a question of time.

He and his generals are praying for heavy rains in November to stop the Allied advance and the German retreat. His policy reads: "Hang on as long as you can; something may turn up."

Several things should turn up soon, in Turkey and in Austria, where everybody is sick of war and failure, and in Germany as well. For, Bolshevism is spreading there, using paths already made by Social Democracy.

Important German newspapers denounce Ludendorff and Von Tirpitz, Hungarians demand separation from Austria—now no longer useful as a protection against Balkan unrest. The Kaiser's diplomatic conversations may be interrupted suddenly.

Whatever happens, this country is ready, and in no hurry. Twenty-three million men are enrolled for fighting. Six billion more dollars have just been enrolled, and plenty more behind the six billions.

Whether or not he gets the rainy November for which he prays, the Kaiser is sure to have a cold Winter.

Prosperous citizens evidently believe in peace. In Wall Street last week they bought $59,000,000 worth of bonds. In the same week last year only $30,000,000. Bonds that averaged $79 each last year averaged more than $88 last week. Some of the dollars made in war are finding permanent homes in safe deposit boxes, and patient, laborious hours are to be spent cutting coupons, said to be hard, monotous work.

Liberty Bonds will rise also, more slowly, but more permanently. Twenty-five million Americans bought of the last issue. They will not regret it if they keep them.

Mr. Wickersham, formerly Republican Attorney-General, arouses great enthusiasm in a Y. M. C. A. audience, suggesting that "America forgive our Allies the debts they owe us"

It is a generous suggestion. The amount lent to the Allies, all told, will probably not exceed $15,000,000,000 when the war ends. Interest on this amount will be $750,000,000 a year. It makes you smile when you think of Tom Reed, called a spendthrift because his Congress appropriated $1,000,000,000 for EVERYTHING—army and navy, interest on the national debt, all government expenses.

Mr. Wickersham says we ought to forgive the debts of our allied friends because we made so much money out of them before we went into the war. Sound reasoning. Let's hope the war profiteers will pay in taxes a reasonable part of the bill, if we do forgive our debtors. Seven hundred and fifty millions a year interest and billions of principal, lent to our ally friends, ought not to be loaded on the backs of little people now fighting the high cost of living and sure to be worried with the problem of reduced wages and reduced employment when the war ends.
